Coast Guard Boards 3 Yugoslav Ships

ONE VESSEL TURNS ABOUT AFTER SAILING

U. S. Patrolmen Go Aboard Her at Anchor; Two Seized at New York Docks.

HEADQUARTERS SILENT

Washington Asserts Move Is Only For Inspection, Isn't Seizure.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Boarding parties of armed coast guardsmen walked the decks of three Yugoslavian freighters in New York harbor today while coast guard headquarters was silent on the seizure of the ships.

One vessel, the Predsednik Kopajtic, had steamed down the bay when the coast guard apparently received word to act and in three hours she slowly steamed back up the bay and dropped anchor off Staten Island.

The Neti and the Screca were boarded at their docks. There was no immediate indication of the type of custody under which the boats were placed or whether it was the same type established in the case of seized German, Danish and Italian ships.

The armed guardsmen were seen yesterday afternoon to board the Neti, an 1,820-ton freighter which arrived here at a Brooklyn dock from St. Thomas, Virgin Islands on April 6.

The 3,167-ton Screca, also a recent St. Thomas arrival, was boarded shortly before midnight last night at another Brooklyn dock. Guards were immediately placed on all approaches to the pier.

Early today another boatload of guardsmen was reported en route to Staten Island where the Prince Pavle, an 8,500-ton freighter is moored.

Last month, Constantin Fotitch, Yugoslav minister, announced that his country's merchant marine would engage in the "closest collaboration with British and American officials." Since then, Yugoslavia has been occupied by Italo-German troops.

A check at that time showed than 15 Yugoslav vessels, totalling 68,547 tons, were in American waters.

Denies U. S. Seizes Yugoslavian Vessels

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Herbert Gaston today conceded that coast guard officers may have boarded some Yugoslav freighters in New York harbor, but he denied that this government had seized the vessels.

City To Have Most Powerful Police Radio Unit In Area

Mansfield will soon have the most powerful police radio station in north central Ohio, Police Chief Meade K. Bates said today in announcing that the federal communications commission had approved his request to increase the station's power from 50 to 250 watts.

Bates applied for the power increase on March 11. Council has appropriated $1,000 for the purchase of materials for a new transmitter. No other changes would be necessary, Bates said.

The permit given federal approval provides that construction will start within 60 days and be completed before Dec. 24. Bates said that most of the parts had already been ordered, and that less than 30 days would be needed to complete the project.

The police chief estimated that the new transmitter would give the station a 50-mile range. At present, some difficulty is experienced in contacting sheriff's cars or state highway patrolmen. He said that the 50-watt transmitter does not contact points such as Plymouth with dependability.

"This added power," said Bates "will allow us to not only blanket the county with a protective radio wave but will also enable closer cooperation with neighboring cities and the state highway patrol."

40 Buses on Mansfield Runs Idle

Greyhound Drivers Still On Strike; Terminal Here "Deserted."

With a dozen Greyhound bus employes on strike in Mansfield along with approximately 1,400 workers in the eastern half of the nation, virtually all bus service in and out of the city was at a standstill today.

Except for the manager, H. W. Palm, who is not a member of the bus employes' union, and two or three waitresses in the terminal restaurant, the Mansfield union terminal was deserted today. The restaurant is operated independently.

Service on the Greyhound lines, the nation's major bus system, was halted at 5 a. m. Sunday when the employes, including drivers, mechanics, and terminal workers, quit work in a "protest walkout."

More than 40 buses operating in and out of Mansfield daily were idle today, Palm said. The Fairlick Stages line from Sanato operate, as did the line from dusky through Mansfield to Mt. Vernon and Newark continued Mansfield to Marion through Galion.

Despite the walkout, it was still possible today to get to Columbus either by way of Newark or Marion.

Palm said there was little confusion at the terminal here Sunday, usually the busiest day in the week. Persons who purchased round-trip tickets before the strike were rerouted over other lines or by way of the Pennsylvania railroad which controls the Greyhound system.

There were no pickets on duty here and no trouble was reported. Mansfield is one of the company's major terminals in Ohio.

Soldiers returning home from southern army camps for visits were stranded in Cincinnati and hitch-hiked northward to Ohio points yesterday. A number of them were said to have come through Mansfield.

At the Columbus terminal, second largest of the Greyhound's 14 dispatching terminals, about 115 employes were affected. Pickets were on duty there and at the Cleveland terminal. No violence was reported.

The walkout was called and then rescinded by the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, an A. F. of L. union. The attempt to call off the strike Saturday came too late to get the word to workers in time, union officials said.

CHECK PRICES

U. S. Officials Ready to Act If Food Costs Go Up.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Government price control officials studied food prices today and prepared to act at once to control them should new increases become evident.

The cost of food has been rising slowly for several months and has reached the stage where ceilings on retail prices are being seriously considered, according to informed officials.

The labor department's bureau of labor statistics has revealed that the living costs of moderate-income families in March were 2.6 per cent higher than in August, 1939, when the war started.

3 MORE JAILED IN BELLVILLE MORALS CASE

Arrest Figure Reaches Seven as Trio of Men, 51 to 71, Faces Charges.

MOTHER, GIRL IN COURT

Judge To Hold Hearing This Afternoon; One Pleads Not Guilty on Arraignment.

Three more Bellville men were in the county jail today in connection with a Bellville morals case which has resulted in the arrest of seven residents of the village, including a 17-year-old girl and her parents.

Taken into custody yesterday and this morning by Sheriff Frank E. Robinson were Alfred Collins, 51; William Lindsay, 71, and Chance Eppley, 58. All are held on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The seven were arrested following an investigation of charges that the parents of two girls, 16 and 17, accepted money from men for permitting illicit relations with their daughters.

Eppley pleaded innocent to the charge this morning before Judge Stuart H. Cramer. The hearing was continued until this afternoon when the others involved in the case were scheduled to go before Judge Cramer.

Also called into court this morning were Mrs. Zelma Stambaugh, 44, whose accusation opened the case four days ago, and her 17-year-old daughter. They have not entered pleas to the charges against them. Mrs. Stambaugh is accused of contributing to the delinquency of her two daughters while the older daughter is held on a delinquency charge.

Others who have been cited on contributing charges are Verne Stambaugh, 51, the girls' father, and Ward Kershner, 65, also of Bellville.

Arrested first in the case was Kershner who was cited last Friday on a charge filed by Mrs. Stambaugh who accused him of immoral relations with her 17-year-old daughter.

After questioning him, Judge Cramer ordered the arrest of the girl, her parents, and three other men.

Deputy sheriffs said questioning of the prisoners revealed that the men allegedly had improper relations with the two girls with the consent of the girls' parents. The younger girl said she was forced by her parents to submit to one of the men, the officers said.

Nazis Report Heavy Damage To Ships, Docks

British Admit Casualties Probably Will Be Heavy; Claim New Hits On Battleships; Flow of Oil From Iraq Reported Cut.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Turkey has offered, or will offer, to mediate the undeclared war between Iraq and Britain, reliable reports said tonight.

BULLETIN

LONDON — (UP) — British planes blasted heavily at Iraq military objectives, according to reports from the fighting front received today, but Iraqi troops were described in foreign radio reports as "closing in" on the besieged Royal Air Force garrison at Habbaniyah.

Adolf Hitler's Luftwaffe, striking within a few hours after the fuehrer told his Reichstag that no coalition of powers could defeat Germany, heavily bombed the city of Belfast, northern Ireland, and attacked Liverpool for the fourth night in a row.

A German communique termed Belfast "an important transit harbor," implying that it was being used as a port of entry for United States war supplies.

The Nazi high command said that four ships were set afire in the harbor and that tremendous fires and explosions were observed in aircraft industrial plants.

British officials said it was feared the casualties at Belfast would be heavy. A previous Nazi raid there, on April 15, caused 500 deaths.

RAF bombers countered with a widespread series of overnight raids, blasting docks and shipping at Rotterdam, Antwerp, Le Havre, Brest, Cherbourg, St. Nazaire and a Nazi-held airdrome at Querqueville. At Brest, the London air ministry reported, RAF bombs scored fresh hits on the German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst in the 15th assault in five weeks.

"Many heavy bombs were dropped and hits were observed on and very near the battle cruisers," the air ministry said. "The docks on both sides of the harbor were hit and large fires started."

In the Near East, Britain's struggle approached a critical stage as the pro-German government of Iraq cut the pipeline flow of oil to the Mediterranean and unconfirmed reports said Iraq troops encircling the British air base garrison at Lake Habbaniyah, 60 miles west of Baghdad, were closing in.

The Swiss radio quoted a Baghdad communique as saying that the airport was under constant artillery fire and that buildings were aflame.

The British declared, however, that the stoppage of Iraq oil, pumped to Haifa in British-mandated Palestine, would not jeopardize the operations of the British Mediterranean fleet.

SPECULATES ON U. S. WAR ENTRY

German Agency Concedes War May Go Into 1942 But Still Sees Victory.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—The chance of American intervention in the war makes it impossible from the German side to speculate on the duration of the conflict, the well-posted commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland said today in comment of Adolf Hitler's speech yesterday.

Dienst, which has close foreign office connections, hinted at the possibility that the war might extend into 1942.

"Involved in the assumption of such a possibility" it said, "lies undoubtedly calculation of the possibility of American intervention.

"Such intervention is appraised by Germans as an influence which could prolong the war but under no circumstances alter the ultimate result."

GERMANS CHANGE CASUALTY COUNT

Pilots Ordered To Produce Pictures of Destroyed Planes.

BERLIN —(AP)— German pilots will need at least an acceptable witness or a photograph in the future to obtain credit for destroying planes or ships.

The new system for determining the number of planes downed and the number of planes and ships destroyed was ordered by Reichmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, chief of the air force.

Strictly accurate reports in this respect are needed, it was said, to provide a basis for judgment of the situation, for the award of medals and to guarantee a truthful history of the war.

SETS RECORD

U. S. Steel Geared to Surpass Nazi Steel Producers.

HOBOKEN—(INS)—If the present rate of operations for United States Steel is maintained for a 12-month period, production of that one corporation alone will top the annual production of all German steel producers.

Irving S. Olds, board chairman, told stockholders today that production and shipments for the first quarter have established new records and U. S. Steel is ready to expand at any time the government deems it necessary.

Current production, if continued, will surpass not only the production of German steel mills but equal the combined before-the-war production of Great Britain, France and Belgium, Olds declared.

$13,850 NEEDED IN FUND DRIVE

Two Days To Go, $50,425 In Pledges Received in City's Annual Campaign.

Reporting $6,026 in new pledges today, Mansfield Community Fund workers today had $13,850.70 to raise in the remaining two days of the campaign to reach the 1941 goal of $64,375.

Jane Williams, executive secretary of the Fund organization, said that preliminary reports today showed $50,524.30 has been raised toward the goal. Final reports on today's pledges are to be at a luncheon meeting of workers at the Y. M. C. A.

Three hundred workers have been engaged daily in the campaign under the leadership of 12 divisional majors. The industrial division, from which is expected to come approximately 60 per cent of the solicitations, turned in $3,880.50 today bringing its total up to $34,230.50. A. C. Rhoads heads this division.

Other divisions making high reports today were the financial and organizations group. George H. Smith, major of the financial group, made a preliminary report

GALION—Fire of an undetermined origin, which broke out in the Norman restaurant, Harding way east, shortly before noon today threatened an entire line of business structures along Galion's main street.

Flames shot from the two-story, frame structure as city firemen, under the direction of Fire Chief Harry Kyle poured several streams of water on the building.

Attracted by the smoke and flames hundreds of persons crowded to the area and U. S. Route 30-S was diverted from the street by police.

BRITISH GET 414 SHIPS IN MARCH

U. S. Plane Shipment Jumps, Washington Figures Show.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The commerce department said today delivery of airplanes to the British empire and Egypt jumped from 258 airplanes in February to 414 planes in March.

Altogether, 481 airplanes were exported in March. Only other major destination of planes was the Dutch East Indies, which received 35.

No indication was given of how much of the March airplane shipments were made on a lend-lease basis.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— When she became entangled in the bedclothes, June Culley, 19, of Ashtabula, a freshman at Ohio State university, smothered to death, Coroner E. E. Smith reported.

An aunt, who discovered the body when she went to call her for breakfast, said Miss Culley had complained of feeling ill when she retired.

AUTO MISHAPS TAKE 12 LIVES

Mansfield Has First Traffic Fatality While Ohio Has Heavy Toll.

Mansfield recorded its first traffic fatality over a week-end which saw Richland county's toll mount to 13 and the death of 12 other persons throughout the state. Several minor accidents were also reported in and near the city.

John W. House, 60, of 115 Blanche street, killed late Saturday as he walked across Lexington avenue at Blanche street, was the city's first traffic victim. He was struck by a car driven by George R. Cashell, Lexington R. D. 1. Cashell told police that House walked into the path of the car.

Claude Marshall, 558 Heineman boulevard, suffered a sprained ankle and abrasions Saturday night when he was knocked down by an auto on West Dickson avenue near Walnut street.

Steel Mill Operations to Climb 2.5 Points This Week.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Operations in the steel mills of the United States will jump 2.5 points this week to 96.8 per cent of capacity, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

The large increase was brought about, steel men said, by the rapid reopening of blast furnaces shut down in two previous weeks by the coal tieup, now settled.

Lockheed Demonstrates Plane Capable of 458 MPH.

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— An airplane which flew by so fast it disappeared before its motors could be heard has made its debut—at a speed, its pilot said, of 458 miles an hour.

Lockhead Aircraft calls it O-28 interceptor, given its first public demonstration before 50,000 spectators at an air show yesterday, the world's fastest fighting plane.

Test Pilot Milo Burcham sent the plane so fast on a level course over the municipal airport that it disappeared into the horizon before the spectators heard the thunder of its engines.

Japan's Oil Purchases In U. S. Show Marked Increase

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Japan's feverish hunt for vitally needed oil—for its army and navy as well as for industry—was reflected today in commerce department statistics showing considerably increased purchases in the United States.

During March the United States exported 1,553,000 barrels of petroleum products to Japan, compared with 1,279,000 barrels in February an 1,491,000 in January.

The large shipments to Japan in March were despite recent U. S. export control measures which require licenses for all metal containers of five or more gallons capacity. This covers much of the petroleum shipments to the Far East.

Officials say 20 Japanese government-owned tankers are in constant service and Japanese shippers are experimenting with shipments in wooden barrels instead of metal containers.

Although there has been some agitation, particularly from Chinese sympathizers, for an embargo on all oil shipments to Japan, Secretary Hull recently said that if embargoes were instituted they would not be directed against any particular nation.

County Remains Geographic Center Of Steel Industry

Richland county is the geographic center of the nation's steel industry again, but the center has moved slightly northeastward to a point near Ohiesburg and Paradise Hill, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported today.

The county gained national recognition last year when the center of steel production was set at a point directly north of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company plant.

The new geographic center nearly eight miles northeast of Mansfield marks the half-way point across the nation on the "tons times miles" basis of figuring.

A greater concentration of the steel industry in the big production centers of Youngstown, Pittsburgh and Cleveland caused the minor shift to the east and north, it was said.

The shift has been eastward for the past eight years, the geographic center returning to Richland county about 1935. Eight years ago it was a short distance northwest of Crestline in Crawford county, marking its most westerly point.

The Empire mill in Mansfield, now operating at capacity is the nearest to the geographic center. About 60 miles eastward in Massillon and Canton are other steel manufacturing plants. The nation's greatest production area, however, is in northeast Ohio and western Pennsylvania.

Write Sensible Letters to Boys In Camp

This is not a letter-writing age. Usually we telephone, telegraph, or scratch a line or two, and half our acquaintances have no idea of what wretched letter-writers we are. In this light, several young draftees have confided their surprise to me at the poor letters they receive from girl friends.

"Positively, Miss Fairfax," one writes, "I never knew what a goose she was until I got a couple of letters from her at camp. I couldn't make out more than half of them, and what I did make out wasn't worth reading—just mush, misspelled and silly. Not that she didn't send love and plenty of crosses for kisses. But why can't a girl who's had at least one year in high school know how to write a decent letter?

(Signed) "SURPRISED."

Why, indeed! The day is past when people used to write long and beautifully composed letters, volumes of which may be seen in our libraries. Still, one expects a girl who's had a year in high school to know how to write legibly, intelligently, even interestingly.

From time to time, this column has taken up the question of letter-writing, and has urged young people to try to improve their handwriting; to borrow from libraries books on "How to Write Letters"; to curb their taste for poisonously colored stationery and to buy an unlined cream or white paper. Last but not least, to invest in a five-cent bottle of ink and not to write to anybody with pencil.

None of these rules, however, apply to me. I assure you that I'm always glad to get a letter written with, perhaps, a stump of a pencil on a leaf torn out of a notebook and scribbled on the kitchen table. I say this because I hope you regard me as your mother-confessor and will write to me in any way you find convenient. But for goodness sake, don't write that sort of a letter to the boy friend or your husband at the camp! A pencil-scrawled address on the envelope might be just a little humiliating to receive.

Now, we'll agree that you've observed all these rules as to pen, ink and paper. What are you going to say to the husband or the boy friend? Write about him, ask him about camp life and tell him how much you miss him; mention any other things in which he would be interested Don't tell him about some man of whom he might be jealous. Don't talk about any other man at all, unless he happens to be a particular buddy of the draftee and one you're sure he'll be interested in knowing about.

If your correspondent is your husband and you have children, he'll want to know everything the darlings say or do, particularly what they say about "Daddy," and how they miss him. If there's any interesting news in the neighborhood, you might tell him that. A homesick man likes to know everything concerning the home and the friends he's left.

If the correspondent is a drafted boy friend, don't be too goo-ey. If you have some particular name for him, you can call him that: "Dearest Red," if he happens to have red hair; "Dear Beanpole," if he happens to be tall and thin, or "Dearest Harry," if that's his name. Don't copy wildly romantic stuff from old volumes of letters.

Don't write stuff like "words cannot fail to tell how the hours creep on without you—." Be practical.

Send him something good to eat, like "Poor Man's Fruit Cake," made from a recipe which I can send you upon receipt of a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope. I can't tell you how many draftees have enjoyed that cake. Or send him a couple of dozen cup cakes or a box of fudge, divinity or pinochi. I'll be glad to send you recipes for them.

The Doctor's Advice.

Parents need to build up a relationship with a child which will make him want to do right. Then he will have pride in doing right because he feels worthy and loved. Therefore, I advised the mother, who wrote the above, not to hold court with her child. She should put emphasis on keeping him from temptations to deceive and on building up his good traits and showing him more approval, love and affection when he does right, especially since he has a baby sister who, he might suppose, is loved more than he is. Dad, of course, should do likewise.

"To punish or not to punish: when and how" is one of a series of pamphlets on the baby and young child I used to give to preschool parents. A folder about these pamphlets may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. Do you advise giving the tot as early as two or three a hammer, soft wood and nails? Suppose the child endangers another child or the furniture with these things?

A. Supervise the youngster while he has them in a regular place, until he is able to be entrusted with them alone. Do likewise when at four or five he is given a saw and other tools.

Q. How may a parent locate a reputable psychiatrist, on suspected mental illness in another member of the family?

A. By telephoning or writing the city or county Medical association. Also the family doctor should be able to name a competent psychiatrist.

CUCUMBER BOATS

Cucumbers go "boating" when stuffed with salmon or tuna salad. Select fresh, well-shaped cucumbers of uniform size. Remove the centers. Make up your favorite salad recipe and stuff the cucumber cases. Stick in flags—tiny bits of red and green peppers on wood picks. The cucumbers can be peeled or used in their skins. They serve only as containers.

Let a bowl of fruit do double duty at your next luncheon party. Fill a low dish with assorted fruits and place it in the table center for decoration, then pass it for the concluding course.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I did not need Dicky's adjuration. My first glimpse of Noel had made my mental barometer dive downward. The face of Mary's young husband, never ruddy, was almost gray, and while we could not see his eyes, his whole appearance was dejected, anything but that of a happy man.

Then he saw us, and waved his hand as he started toward us.

"We must pretend not to notice," Dicky whispered, 'but you'd better find out what's up. It isn't on the free list for a guy to look like that."

"This is a surprise, Uncle Dick," he said, but though his lips were smiling, and his voice cheery, his eyes could not hide the suffering which he was trying so bravely to camouflage.

Noel Is Puzzled.

"Mary didn't tell me you were coming," he went on. "She just said I was to meet Auntie Madge. Does she know you're here?"

"Nary a know," Dicky responded, shaking Noel's outstretched hand cordially. "In fact, I didn't know myself until about the time you aunt's train started."

"She'll be glad to see you," Noel said. 'Shall we get a taxi now?'

"Not I," Dicky answered. "I'm going to turn your aunt over to your especial care, and hop the next train back to Dalemont."

"Dalemont," Noel wrinkled his forehead as he repeated the word. "Isn't that where the Brixton's live?"

"Correct. That's the place from which we just came and to which we're going back."

"Mary didn't tell me." His face wore a puzzled expression which quickly turned to anxiety.

'Is anything wrong?" he asked, and I reflected that the query was a natural one from this young husband of Dicky's niece, who so recently had been through such a harrowing experience.

"Yes, and no," Dicky responded. "There's nothing wrong with our immediate family or yours, but Marion is in some trouble that we're trying to straighten out."

Dicky Surprises Madge.

I could not restrain a quick look of surprise at him. I had not intended to confide Marion's troubles to Noel, but to Mary, leaving her to tell him whatever part of the story she thought best.

"Auntie Madge will, no doubt, tell you all about it, after she has talked to Mary," my husband went on. She must get that job over without any delay."

"You mean, she must see Mary alone, for a long time, as soon as we get back to the Lansfield?" he asked.

"I don't imagine it will take too long," Dicky answered cheerily, "but she certainly has to see her immediately. But here's something of equal importance, which I want to lay on you."

His voice was suddenly imperative, and I guessed his meaning, as he took my arm and swung me around facing Noel.

"Both your aunt and your wife must be guarded," he said, "by you and the hotel, until I can get in touch with Dad and have him attend to it. There is no terrible danger, but your aunt has something which certain people want, and knowledge which we think Mary possesses, they also want. Everything will be all right, if they both go through the usual motions of everyday life, but don't let either of them go anywhere alone until I give you the word."

"You mean," Noel began, then closed his lips tightly upon the question.

"I'll look after both of them, every minute," he said earnestly, and Dicky smiled his approval.

"That's one load off my mind," he said. "And now, Sweet, I must dash. Good-bye! Give my love to Mary, and—one more thing. Are you going to telephone me after you have seen her?"

Beautifying In Odd Minutes Always Helpful

By MME. QUI VIVE.

Ladies of leisure, who don't have to hustle home the bacon and spinach, who never worry about the balance in the check book, have little difficulty in keeping young and pretty. They go to the beauty shop every week, get the whole works. And there's no doubt that professional treatments act as an insurance against the ravages of old man Time. The war against him goes on steadily and successfully.

But the best that the homemaker and the career girl can do, if the budget is small and time can't be found for anything but the job, is to get in a little slick skirmishing at odd moments and to take a pot shot at the old meanie whenever the opportunity offers. Opportunities there are if one will take the time to look for them.

First, there is the mental attitude that must be cultivated. The idea of beauty is born in the mind. One must have a deep desire to keep in step with what is going on, to keep fit spiritually and physically. One must always be brave; cowardice is the enemy of good looks. Away with unpleasant emotions. Worry, jealousy, envy, selfishness—they're bad 'uns.

Utilize every spare moment. When waiting for an appointment, relax, close your eyes, rest. Your energy motors will be recharged.

Don't get fussed about trifles. Everybody burns the toast sometimes, or spills the milk. Accept irritations as part of the day's business.

Rest your eyes whenever you can They serve you every waking hour. After a certain time at your typewriter, if that's your job, stand at a window and look far away. A change of vision for even a few minutes is good for your peepers.

If you are a desk worker, sit tall and well back in the chair; you won't be so likely then to take on what are called chair deformities—spreading hips, bent shoulders. Keep your head on the level. When held properly it is less of a strain on the muscles of the neck and shoulders. Fatigue is avoided.

When walking, take your deep breathing exercises that will rustle up the blood streams and improve the complexion. Never forget the value of good posture, which gives snap and charm to even the simplest frock.

Any one can sneak 20 minutes for beautifying before crawling into bed. Scalp massage, hair brushing, complexion and hand creaming, nail massage—all can be done in a jiffy. The woman who retains her good looks is the one who does her beauty chores every day without letup. The stop-and-go-system just doesn't work.

Take plenty of time for your bath, which is a wonderful restorative. It's good for your muscles, your nervous system and your lily white hide.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

CHOOSING THE PENALTY

Infractions of the Laws frequently offer a choice of penalties to the non-guilty side. One of the most important of these is the option presented when the opening lead is made by the wrong defender. Usually the declarer selects the punishment of telling the correct leader which suit he must open. Upon occasion, it is better to take the other choice, which is to treat the card led in error as a "penalty card." This means that it must be laid face-up on the table, and must be played or led the first time it may be used legally. Usually that is when the declarer has a dangerous suit, through which the defenders may lead, to his great damage.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	2 ♣	2 ♦	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Dbl

East was in such a hurry to start what he thought would be a dangerous spade suit against South, after his own very thin double, that he led out of turn, his spade 5.

"Out of turn," said South. "That empowers me to tell West what suit he must lead or else treat the card as a penalty card." After a bit of study, he chose to call a lead, asking for the dummy's diamond suit.

West therefore led the diamond 9 to the 10 and Q, and East shifted at once to his club 10. The J covered, the Q won, and West shot back a diamond, not wishing to help the declarer by leading the other suits. Dummy won, led for a low heart finesse returned with another diamond to cash the last diamond and lead for another heart finesse, and the heart A dropped the K, the last heart then being cashed. Now declarer had to lead a spade. If a small one, West would duck and let East win to return a club and thus trap the club K. South tried his spade A instead, hoping to make West win the next, but West put his K on it and the Q won the next trick, for East to come through clubs and beat and contract.

If South had chosen to treat the spade 5 as a penalty card, because he feared club leads through him, he would have made his contract. Just follow it through with opening leads of any suit you want, remembering that East would have to play or lead the spade 5 at the earliest legal chance. You will find that South gets nine tricks with any lead.

HOROSCOPE

Within the Means of Every Family

We occasionally hear of some person who fears that the cost of Finefrock Funeral Service may be beyond their means.

It is true that no expense has been spared in providing a beautiful funeral home and in every other way offering a finer service.

But this finer service is within the means of every family. Our records show that more than two-thirds of the adult funerals we conduct cost less than $400, and quite a number are at prices less than $200.

We invite consultation, and advance arrangements by any who prefer them.

Don't Be a Detective With Child

By GARRY MYERS, Ph.D.

In the child of three or sixteen, you can't prevent deception and promote integrity and cooperation by holding court and playing prosecuting attorney. Keep your eyes open and protect your child from temptations he cannot withstand, but don't be a detective. Don't put your child on the witness stand forcing him to testify against himself, when you suspect that he has erred.

Like most other conscientious parents, those in the following instance have made their little child grow more dishonest and deceptive while they were trying their best to lead him to be honest and truthful. Parents want the child to learn early that deceit doesn't pay and that it brings unhappiness to the deceiver, and they don't get far if they center their attention on catching and punishing him when he lies. This will only make him worse. If a mother compels her child to confess one time, she has prepared him to lie more skillfully and steal more successfully the next.

The Letter.

"Our five-year-old boy has been taking money out of his Dad's trousers. When he is caught he declares persistently that he found it, or that baby took it and he took it away from her to give to Dad.

"Yesterday I left him alone in the house for about ten minutes. When I came back he had taken two eggs out of the refrigerator and broken them against the house outside. . . . Today I asked him if he had broken the eggs and opened the refrigerator. He admitted reluctantly that he had.

OLD FORT SITE FACES AUCTION

Historic Fort Miami Defended Great Lakes-Mississippi Waterways.

TOLEDO, O. —(AP)— If historical and patriotic societies here fail in their efforts to raise $16,000 the site of historic Fort Miami, which for almost a century defended Great Lakes-Mississippi waterways for two European powers, will become part of a real estate development.

Title to the land where the fort stood is now held by the Ohio state superintendent of banks. Unless the $16,000 is raised by interested parties to preserve the site, it will be sold to satisfy claims of depositors in closed local banks.

Fort Miami, one of the first posts established in this area in the 18th century, was first built by the French in the early 1700s to guard water routes when it was contesting with Great Britain fo rcontrol of the Great Britain for control of the the British after the French and Indian War and figured in both the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812.

Another clash there was narrowly avoided in 1794 when Gen "Mad Anthony" Wayne paraded his American troops within gunshot of the walls after routing the northwestern Indians at the battle of Fallen Timbers, a few miles down the Maumee river. Wayne defied the British garrison, which continued to hold the post as one of the British forts maintained on United States soil even after England had recognized the independence of this country. Open hostilities did not develop however.

The British later used the fort in the War of 1812 as a strategic point for control of the old Northwest.

The fort site is just 10 miles south of Toledo and was a partial objective of Wayne when he made his historic march from Cincinnati through the wilderness of western Ohio to subdue the Indians and redeem the prestige of American arms which suffered a severe setback by the Indians a few years earlier at the headwaters of the Wabash river. The settlers had accused the British at Fort Miami and other posts maintained on American soil of encouraging attacks in the West.

Army Air Corps Men Are Housed In Boston Hotels

BOSTON—(INS)—Here's the "goldbrickers" dream come true. Army life in a hotel!

Housed in two Back Bay hotels are some of the nearly 300 army air corps men studying aircraft at the New England Aircraft school, first in the New England area to be certified by the Civil Aeronautics Authority for the three-way training of civilians and army men.

This training is for (1) pilots' ground-school instruction, (2) mechanics school and (3) aircraft and engine repair

The school will open a new $135,000 plant at East Boston airport April 14. It is now in temporary quarters in the Back Bay.

The men who are enjoying the luxury of hotel life are picked enlisted men and non-commissioned officers who are in intensive training to serve as crew-chiefs. They are undergoing a six-months course and passed rigid preliminary examinations before being accepted.

TINY ENGINE SHOWS SPEED

The tiny engine was built by T Ray Arden of Baldwin L I, and was mounted in an ordinary spectacle case. It was equipped with a single miniature spark plug fashioned out of quartz and ran for five minutes on its fuel capacity of three drops of a mixture of gasoline and heavy oil

The engine started at 4,775 revolutions a minute and developed a maximum speed of 10,000 revolutions

CASUALTY OF DRAFT

PITTSFIELD, Mass. —(AP)— The first casualty of the draft in New England was Lex, a spiny-tailed iguana that has lived since 1929 in the Berkshire Museum as a pet of staff member Stewart E Green. When Green was called to arms, Lex began a hunger strike that caused his death.

Examining Board Of Flying Cadets To Convene Here

Preparing for the U. S. Air corps "refresher" school scheduled to open in Mansfield May 19, the Flying Cadets examining board will be in the city May 12, 13, and 14 to conduct physical examinations for youths who have applied for entrance in the training school.

The five-member board is headed by Major James L. Zimmerman of Mansfield and makes its headquarters at Fort Hayes, Columbus. Board members, in addition to Major Zimmerman, are First Lieut. George D. Skow, First Lieut. John W. Matson, Second Lieut. E. H. Wynn, and First Lieut. Fred O. Mavis.

Major Zimmerman said last night that the examinations probably will be conducted at the Mansfield Armory.

The Mansfield Junior Association of Commerce is cooperating with Major Zimmerman in getting youths in the Mansfield area to enroll in the pilot training school which will be held two nights a week from May 19 through mid-August.

The school here will be one of several the Air Corps is sponsoring in Ohio for the training of officer pilots. The schools are open to men from 20 to 27 who are citizens and in good physical condition.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I WONDER what has become of the old family custom of warning a young man to stay away from chorus girls. In the present era this warning is uncalled for, and certainly unheeded. It is uncalled for because most chorus girls nowadays are very nice girls who live with their mothers or with another girl who would live with her mother if her mother were not in Indianapolis, Ind., and who know how to knit and crochet and cook spaghetti in a kitchenette. They are certainly not menaces; most of them are not even gold-diggers. More chorus girls wear skunk than wear mink.

Dorothy Kilgallen

Many of them do not dye their hair, and if they do, what of it? So do a lot of girls who live in Jackson Heights and ride to work at 8:30 a. m. on the subway. Most of them would rather go bowling than drink champagne in a fancy supper club.

* * *

They are all very young and ambitious. They want to understudy the star, or do a specialty in the show, or get a screen test and go into the movies, or double in a night club. They are not creatures of luxury and limousines and breakfast-in-bed.

They have breakfast in a kitchenet or at a drug store counter where they know the soda clerk by his first name and they wash out their own stockings and do their own fingernails.

Perhaps families whose sons are exposed to Broadway and show business may still warn the young heirs to stay away from the pretty girls of the footlights, but if they do, they are very foolish. Most young men could learn better manners and better morals from chorus girls than they could from debutantes.

I always like movies with Spencer Tracy, Humphrey Bogart, Jimmy Stewart and Bette Davis in them, even when the movies aren't very good . . . The publicity on Gargantua has been so humanized I'm sure a lot of people who go to the circus to see him are surprised to see him in a cage.

I never believe the clocks I see inserted in big electric signs . . . The Claremont Inn is one of my favorite spring eating places. I love dining in rooms with a view.

I wonder what would happen if the Rialto, home of the horror films, crossed its customers and presented something sweet and tender, like "Little Women."

Among those persons I'd like to meet, high on the list is Salvatore Dali . . . I can't believe he really exists . . . If he does, I'd like to watch him work. Does he use live models, supplied by a special agency which has models with two dimensional faces, six-fingered hands, rectangular bosoms, corkscrew necks and telephones for ears?

I wish bicycles built for two would come back. I suppose feminism put an end to that. I'm against feminism. I think women would be just as well off if they couldn't vote.

I can't understand why the box seat in a theater won so much popularity in romantic novels and elsewhere. It's a good place from which to be seen if you're done up in your best ermine and a new diamond necklace, of course—but as a place to watch a play, it's about the worst in any theater.

I never used to be able to think of Lucy Monroe without thinking of the Star Spangled Banner. Now I can't hear of the Star Spangled Banner without thinking of Lucy Monroe. . . . . .

Too bad that more of those highly-publicized Hollywood glamor girls—the ones whose bathing suit and "sweater" pictures make the magazines more exciting—don't do as well in the movies as they do in still shots. I guess it takes more than a wonderful figure and a beautiful face to be an actress—but not much more!

It's a little disturbing these days to see the way some minority voices are getting shushed. Especially when you think of the beginnings of our country, and the men who built it, and the men who became great in its history.

If I recall correctly, many wonderful Americans live in bronze and marble and the printed page and the hearts of those who followed because they went against the tide of their times; besause they fought for the side of the few. There was, for instance, a fellow named Abraham Lincoln. . . .

I don't know if I'd have the courage to look at the Taj Mahal by moonlight, even if I were suddenly transported to its front yard. I'd be so afraid the spectacle wouldn't live up to what I've grown to expect from the poets.

ADMITS KILLING HOLD-UP VICTIM WHO RESISTED

Thrice-Convicted Footpad Confesses Slaying Heir to Billboard Fortune.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—A thrice-convicted footpad, Morris Mardavich, 23, early today was reported by the district attorney's office to have confessed the slaying of Harry V. Maxwell, 41, heir to America's greatest billboard advertising fortune, who was shot to death at 5 a. m. Sunday as he resisted a robbery attempt while sitting in a parked car on a midtown Manhattan street.

Mardavich, an unemployed plumber's helper, admitted the killing after 20 hours' grilling, Assistant District Attorney Jacob Rosenblum announced. The youth, who has been convicted twice for burglary and once for larceny, will be arraigned later today in homicide court.

Mardavich, Rosenblum said, confessed that he and a companion approached the coupe in which the wealthy advertising executive and Jane Cassidy, 22-year-old model, were seated outside the girl's home, and squeezed their way into the front seat.

Maxwell, the youth said, put up a fight, "so I let him have it." Police refused to disclose whether Mardavich's companion was still in custody or whether he was being sought.

At the time of the slaying of the wealthy ad executive, Miss Cassidy was unaware that he had been shot. She told police that two men pushed their way into the car, and that she heard a sharp click when Maxwell threw up his hands to resist.

After the men fled, Miss Cassidy, believing that Maxwell had fainted, drove the car from her home to his apartment building eight blocks away.

It was not until then that it was discovered he had been shot through the heart with a .32 bullet.

Imposter Trapped Because He Didn't Know Ships.

DALLAS — A striped undershirt showing at the V of a sailor suit made Officer Bill Williams, a former navy man, suspicious.

"What ship are you from?" he asked the wearer.

"The Tennessee," was the reply.

"That a cruiser?"

"Yep."

"The Tennessee," snapped Williams, "is a battleship. Maybe you'd better take down your hair and tell all."

The man confessed he was a garbage wagon driver who bought the uniform in a pawnshop to impress the girls.

QUARREL ENDS IN FATAL SHOOTING

Man Accused Of Slaying Neighbor After Dispute.

LUDLOW, Ky.—(U.P.)—A six-year-old neighborhood dispute over the clipping of a hedge row ended in a fatal shooting today.

Stanley Peck, 33, was killed and Samuel Fordyce, 69, his neighbor, was held on a charge of murder.

For six years the two had argued over cuttings from a hedge which fell on a cement driveway leading to Peck's garage. Fordyce claimed part of the driveway was on his property.

The argument became violent yesterday. Fordyce said Peck shoved him against a wall and then Fordyce grabbed a pistol and shot in self-defense.

CONTROVERSIAL BILLS COME UP

Ohio Assembly Enters Last Days of Session; Action on 3 Measures Near.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Three explosive-laden pieces of legislation come up in the Ohio general assembly tonight as it enters the last days of the 94th biennial session.

The senate is scheduled to vote on the controversial unemployment insurance bill, with labor forces striving to kill it.

Another senate fight centers about a measure to raise the safety standards of coal miners.

The house will act on the senate-approved bill to increase the state highway patrol from 200 to 300 and expand their police powers, which labor opposed.

Meanwhile, the $352,800,000 biennial appropriation bill will be sent to a conference committee instructed to adjust differences between the senate and house over budget increases.

Both the insurance and mine measures, if passed by the senate, would have to go to the house for its approval, too, and might keep the legislature at work until next week.

House leaders, however, remained firm in their intention to quit work Thursday and adjourn since die May 20. Only the most urgent legislation sent over by the senate will receive attention after Thursday, they said.

Taft Tells Legion Early Defeat of Germany Hardly Likely.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft (R., O.) doesn't "think it possible to defeat Germany for many years" and is satisfied that "we are doing all anyone can ask us to do to aid Britain."

Speaking at an American first committee yesterday, Taft declared that "only a few intellectuals want war" and charged that those who urge convoys are not "concerned about saving ships, but merely trying to get us into the war."

"We are down to one question today—shall the United States go to war against a nation which has not attacked us?" Taft asserted.

BYRD'S ANTARCTIC FLAGSHIP ARRIVES AT BOSTON ARMY BASE

(By International News Service)

BOSTON—Ending an eighteen-months journey to the bottom of the world, the famed North Star, flagship of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's antarctic expedition, arrived at the army base today.

On hand to greet the North Star and the 35 polar adventurers on board was Rear Admiral Byrd who went on the expedition in 1938, but returned ahead of time several months ago to go into active service with the United States army.

Byrd boarded the ship and was greeted by Dr. Paul A. Siple, of Erie, Pa., commander of the Little America base and leader of the Antarctic expedition after the rear admiral left.

A touch of romance was in the air for among 200 persons, mostly relatives and friends of expedition members who braved a drizzling rain to witness the docking of the North Star, was "Marge," a San Diego, Calif., girl who plans to marry Archie C. Hill, 32, Long Beach, Calif., the cook of the expedition.

"Marge," who declined to reveal her last name said she and Archie would be married as soon as the license could be obtained.

As soon as the South Polar expedition equipment is unloaded from the North Star, the rugged ship will be inducted into the United States navy for Polar patrol service, probably around Greenland, the Danish possession recently declared a United States protectorate by President Roosevelt.

Another of the Byrd Antarctic ships, the Bear, is due to dock in Boston May 16.

Spanish Will Be Required Study In New Mexico

SANTA FE, N. M.—(INS)—The state of New Mexico is preparing to take part in the national campaign for better relations with our Latin American neighbors by making the Spanish language a compulsory subject in public schools.

Governor John E. Miles has ordered leaders in several movements to promote the more widespread use of the language to work out a suitable program. In addition, three bills have been introduced in the state legislature concerning the subject.

Such action on the part of the governor and the legislature was somewhat paradoxical in the light of a recent measure passed by the state assembly. The measure abolished Spanish as one of the official state languages and provided that henceforth all legal notices, ballots and other state literature shall be printed only in English.

Reveals Nazis Had Antarctic Base

BOSTON—(U.P.)—Germany maintained antarctic naval repair shops at Deception Island harbor—only 600 miles from South America—until they were blown up a few months ago, it was reported when members of the United States Antarctic expedition arrived here today.

Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who was among 200 persons who greeted the returning members of his expedition aboard the motorship North Star, expressed astonishment when he heard the report.

Dr. Paul A. Siple of Erie, Pa., who had charge of the expedition's west base in Little America told Byrd that he received his information from "a high Chilean naval officer" when the North Star stopped at a Chilean port.

"The officer told me that the shops were built there and that German explorers were in the area in 1938," Dr. Siple said. "The officer said the shops were blown up and you can draw your own conclusions as to who may have done this."

The bus strike proved expensive yesterday to Mrs. Tom Withers of Ashland, wife of a state examiner who is working at the Richland county courthouse. Returning home from Columbus, Mrs. Withers found in Columbus that she could not get a direct connection to Ashland by bus or train, so she decided to take a taxi to Mansfield and take her chances on getting the rest of the way. The fare here was $12. To make matters worse, she found later that she could have gone to Newark or Marion and then to Mansfield by either bus or train at little more than the regular fare.

Smokers Blamed for Increase In Cigaret Fires.

OXFORD, O.—(AP)—The number of fires caused by Ohio smokers increased nearly 600 per cent during the decade ending in 1939, Miss Josephine Armstrong of Xenia, Miami university graduate student, discloses in a survey of municipal fire control in Ohio which she prepared as a thesis for an advanced degree.

Her survey, which she said the state fire marshal's office urged her to publish as the first of its kind and useful in fire prevention work, shows that modern methods of fire fighting decreased the damage of the average Ohio fire from $2.39 in 1929 to $1.47 ten years later.

EARLY ACTION PREDICTED IN LOWER HOUSE

Measure Comes Up as Question of Convoying Aid Gets Further Momentum.

By JOHN R. BEAL
(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The house takes up today the bill which would permit President Roosevelt to use foreign vessels, including German and Italian, tied up in American ports, in the aid-to-Britain program, 24 hours after the president declared in a speech that the United States is ready to fight again for democracy.

The congressional debate began against the background of a heightened public debate of America's part in Britain's fight for survival. While Mr. Roosevelt was speaking at Staunton, Va., birthplace of Woodrow Wilson, World war president, Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Republican presidential candidate, was calling for convoys or any other method necessary to deliver war materials to Britain, in a speech at Nashville.

At the same time, Dr. James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard university, who recently returned home from an official mission to Britain, was asking America's immediate entry into the war on Britain's side.

Administration leaders predicted that the ship requisition bill would pass the house quickly and go to the senate, probably tomorrow, where isolationists hope to add an amendment that would specifically prohibit use of American naval forces to convoy ships into combat zones.

They had failed to get the prohibition, written as a legislative bill, reported by the senate foreign relations committee last week.

But Sen. Claude Pepper, D., Fla., was expected to make a speech on the senate floor this afternoon demanding that the United States undertake convoys at once. Sen. Joseph Guffey, D., Pa., made such a demand last week.

The United States had seized 28 Italian, two German, and 39 Danish ships in American ports. The bill before the house would authorize Mr. Roosevelt to requisite them for any service deemed necessary, including transfer to Britain, upon payment of compensation to their owners.

House opponents hoped to amend the bill so commandeered vessels could not be turned over to Britain or diverted to the 2,000,000 ton shipping "pool" which Mr. Roosevelt has directed the maritime commission to assemble for British aid.

Mary Brian Weds, Phil Harris Gives Alice Faye A Ring

HOLLWOOD — (INS) — Mary Brian, the "bachelor girl of the movies," and John Whitcomb, magazine illustrator, were New York-bound today after their marriage in Hollywood.

Only a few friends and relatives witnessed the ceremony performed yesterday by Dr. Harold Proppe, pastor, at the First Baptist church.

The couple planned to leave Wednesday for a Caribbean honeymoon.

HOLLYWOOD —(INS)— Orchestra leader Phil Harris confirmed rumors that he will wed Alice Faye when he announced that he will give the blonde singing star an engagement ring today—her 26th birthday.

Harris said that they probably will marry sometime in the fall.

The bandleader will not be legally free until September when his divorce from Marcia Ralston, film actress, becomes final. Miss Faye recently divorced Tony Martin, also of the screen.

Julie Adams (Dunne) was sentimental about old phonograph records. The day she decided to leave Roger (Grant) forever, she got out an album and played the pieces they had known together.

Each reminded her of some important part of their romance: their meeting; their impulsive marriage just before his work as a reporter took him to Japan; the terrific earthquake that robbed her of her expected child, the little country weekly they bought and struggled with.

She remembered how Applejack (Buchanan) connived that they should adopt a child: the baby, the terrifying, funny-in-retrospect first night as parents; the time they nearly lost the child because Roger's income was gone; the happiness little Trina brought, and then the grief that tore them apart and made them torment each other until now Julie was playing records while waiting for her train tickets to come.

It's a simple story, just about a couple of people who act like human beings and do human, recognizable things. It's full of laughs and tears, as sentimental as Barrie's Tommie and as warmhearted as Christmas. It'll "get" you if you give it half a chance.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

I've been trying for several weeks now to talk President George Satterlee of the Mansfield Braves into playing Saturday, instead of night, games.

It would take no kind of a sterling sleuth to discover that many Mansfielders have many other things to do on Saturday night than go to ball games, I argued.

And while they might also find other things to do on Saturday afternoon it's a cinch they couldn't take them as seriously as they do those Saturday night activities.

* * *

But of course I'm not particularly interested in how the Mansfielders celebrate their week-ends. It's the early copy for Sunday papers that I'm after.

A night game tossed on the sports desk at 11 p. m. could present a bit of a chore on some Saturday nights, I imagine. Yep, the afternoon game would make it easier for me, and that's what I want.

* * *

Trying to take it easy before the summer starts, eh? Well it's not too early for me to think how tired I might be on those hot summer nights. Ol' spring fever's got me.

* * *

I broke a rule yesterday of 20 years standing in sports and other forms of newspaper writing. I took a cut of the gate at the girls' softball opener at Johns Park. And not too large a gate it was to start with.

But the rule against cutting in should be able to stand this one lapse.

* * *

Bucky Holda was counting the take when she came across a strange coin.

"This isn't any good, is it?" she asked. "It looks like a beer check."

"Gimme that thing." I demanded. "I've always wanted to own a check for a short beer."

But I still haven't got one. It was a Canadian nickel.

Nothing compares to a check for beer.

Providents Open Softball Season With 10 to 1 Win

Champs Turn Back Elyria Club on Frank Knapp's Brilliant Hurling

MANSFIELD'S only state sport champions of the moment, the Mansfield Provident girls' softball club, opened their season like champions yesterday with a 10 to 1 victory over Elyria at Johns Park diamond.

Heroine of the victory was Frances Clark Knapp, the recent bride, who kept the Elyria hitters handcuffed in spite of a badly swelled pitching hand, injured in the first inning when she knocked down a line drive through the box.

* * *

The hand swelled up to three sizes less than a pumpkin, but Fran stayed on the mound and would have blanked the Elyrians but for a fluke home run in the sixth inning by Forbush who smacked a hot shot over the outside corner of the third base bag and made the circuit while the ball rolled to the far corner of the park.

* * *

The hit was outside the base line by inches, but the base had been kicked outside the line and Umpire Darby Yarman ruled, rightly, that it was a fair ball. It would have been merely a loud foul.

Ev Jocha, veteran first sacker of the champion Providents also hit for the circuit, smashing a line drive to deep center and out to the club house in the fourth inning. A fast relay on the throw-in had Ev beat at the plate but she tallied on a neat hook slide that escaped the Elyria catcher's diving lunge.

* * *

The Elyria girls, evidently not as far advanced in spring training as Manager Doc Daugherty's champs, tossed and booted the game away in the first inning, presenting the Providents with four runs on numerous errors. Overthrows into the crowd turned base running into a stroll for the Mansfield girls.

* * *

Florence Casper took over the mound chores for the Providents in the seventh frame and, although a bit wild, retired the visitors on three pop-ups.

Next Sunday the Providents meet Youngstown at Johns Park.

Hurlers Hustle For New Boss

Clowson Has Job Picking Mound Staff for Braves.

Judging from the results of the nearly intra-squad games, Alex Clowson's big job as manager of the Mansfield Braves will be the selection of a pitching staff.

* * *

The first practice game was staged Saturday and the second on Sunday, and all that Clowson learned in these two games is that the hurling candidates are ready, or nearly so.

* * *

In yesterday's tilt at the Fairground, the pitchers again held the upper hand. Don Wentz' club garnered only four hits, but won the six-inning game, 2 to 1. Ed Mutryn's losers obtained only a pair of bingles.

Both of the bingles chalked up by Mutryn's boys were pounded out by Bruce Williams, an outfielder assigned to the Braves by Flint of the Michigan State league.

Williams, a right-handed batter, singled to left on his first trip to the platter, walked his second time up and blasted the second intra-squad home run of the training season over the left field wall in the sixth and final inning to account for the lone tally registered by Mutryn's vanquished club.

"Sky" Patterson started on the mound for the winning Wentz team. He yielded one hit in three innings, struck out three and walked one. Tony Drewek, another hold-over from last season, took over in the fourth and Williams' four-bagger was the only hit he gave up in his three-inning tenure on the hillock.

Fred Wollpert, a Cleveland sandlotter, pitched the final two innings for the Mutryn club, and the two runs that won the ball game for the Wentzmen were tallied at his expense in the sixth.

Errors by Pitcher Wollpert and Shortstop Bob Ankrum set up the winning tallies, Joe Bolash tallying the first marker on Ankrum's error after singling and Harold Robison the second and winning run on Bill McGrath's single to left after reaching first on Wollpert's bad throw to first on a grounder.

* * *

Bolash, an Elyria boy, collected two of the four hits obtained by the winners, getting singles in the fourth and sixth.

* * *

Manager Clowson announced after yesterday's tilt that another practice game would be played out at the Fairground early this afternoon.

Birdie Brands Finish Seventh

Bissman Birdie Brands rolled into seventh place in the Ohio State bowling tournament at Dayton as the joust closed over the week-end.

* * *

Bissman's collected 2991 pins in the team event on the following scores: Dale Cleckner 578, Johnny Leppo 564, Ferrell Hipp 529, Sonny Meder 679, and Art Hilborn 641.

Meder finished well up in the money in all-events with 1803, and Hilborn clicked in the singles with 634 to take a chunk of prize money. An embarrassing 128 game in doubles kept Art out of some important all-events dough.

Singles and doubles scores were:

Ben Cole, veteran Akron kegler, smashed out a 729 Class A singles score in the final round yesterday to snatch the crown from the previous leader, Roy Rice of Cleveland, by two pins.

The others clinched their titles earlier in the five week-ends of kegling but only the five-man team score of 3138 rolled by the Akron O'Neils in Class A was recognized prior to the final stanzas.

The O'Neils' captain, Buzz Fazio, who posted 2004 on Easter Sunday, was awarded the Class A all-events diadem. Other champions were:

Class B team, Geco Service Shop of Cleveland, 3043. Class A doubles, J. Klares and A. Black of Cleveland, 1338. Class B doubles, A. Zimmerman and M. Redelle of Dayton, 1293. Class B singles, L. Grokek of Cleveland, 680, and Class A all-events, W. Mielke of Canton, 1931.

Canton Kegler Hits 299 At St. Paul

ST PAUL—(AP)—William Caskey, 30, bowling manager of Canton, O., rolled the second 299 game in the five-man event in the 41-year history of the American Bowling Congress here last night

It came in his final game while rolling with the Myers team. After 11 straight strikes, his 12th ball was a light pocket hit and left the No. 7 pin. Caskey totaled 715 on games of 193, 223 and 299, giving him an excellent start for the all-events Tuesday afternoon.

GAMES WANTED

The American Federation of Labor baseball team, the former Marion R. A. C.'s baseball club, would like to schedule games with teams in this vicinity. Last year they were the city champions of Marion. Any manager interested should write to John Paulus, 520 Ballentine avenue, Marion, Ohio or phone 5757.

Kels Find Range In Association

(By Associated Press)

Tom Sheehan's Minneapolis sluggers have found the range after a slow start in the American Association.

The clouting Kels dropped six of their first 10 games but wheeled out its long range guns again yesterday to rack up a double victory over Toledo, 11 to 7 and 7 to 5. This moved the Millers into second place with six victories in their last seven engagements and left them only one game back of pace-setting Louisville.

* * *

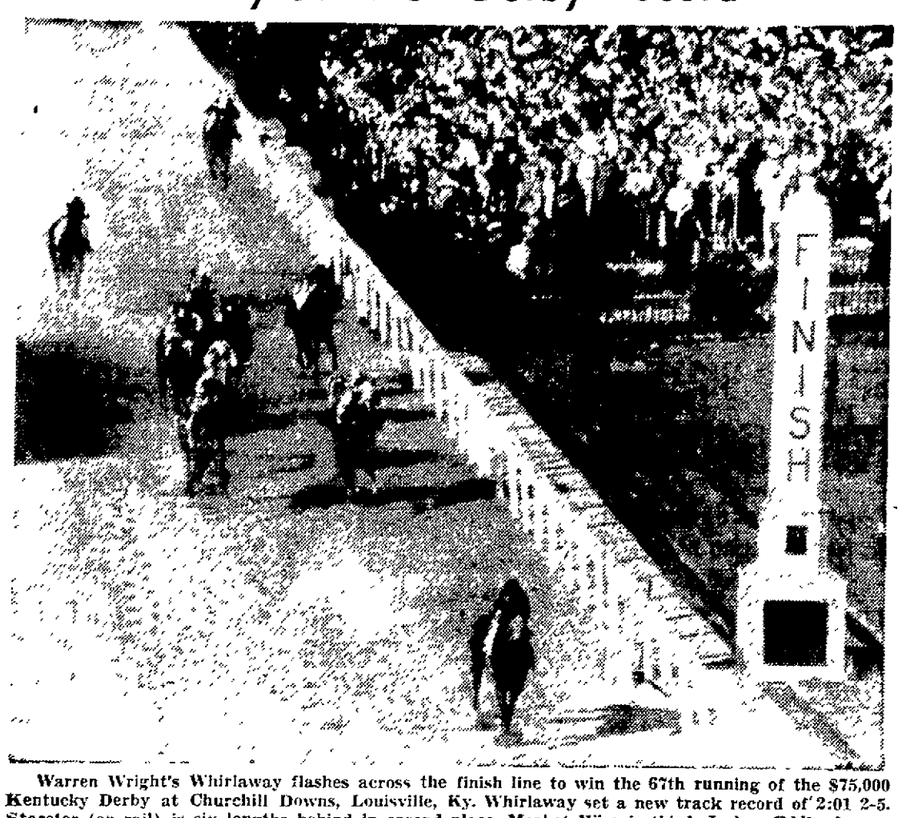
Fabian Gaffke's home run with two on board broke up the first battle in the seventh inning. The Kels got a total of 14 hits good for 21 bases including three homers. Buck Fausett's pinch home run with Ab Wright on base won the nightcap.

* * *

Milwaukee's basement Brewers utilized a similar attack to whip Indianapolis twice, 6 to 3 and 7 to 2. Louisville observed Kansas City's flag-raising ceremony by crushing the 1940 champions under a 15 to 3 score.

St. Paul and Columbus split a double bill the Saints taking the opener 9 to 4, after rolling up five runs in the third, while the Birds eked out a 1-0 edge in the six-inning nightcap.

As Whirlaway Set New Derby Record



Warren Wright's Whirlaway flashes across the finish line to win the 67th running of the $75,000 Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, Louisville, Ky. Whirlaway set a new track record of 2:01 2-5. Staretor (on rail) is six lengths behind in second place. Market Wise is third. Jockey Eddie Arcaro rode the winner.

Tribe Hurlers Getting Stingy

Average Seven Hits In Long Winning Streak.

By BILL BONI
(AP Sports Writer)

Bobby Feller is due to go back to work for the Cleveland Indians today, which is enough to make the American league leaders a good bet to run their winning streak to 11 straight against the Washington Senators.

* * *

Since that surprising kayo the Chicago White Sox hung on his chin opening day, Master Robert has won four starts.

* * *

A pitcher who sets the opposition down with seven hits usually is deserving of more than a mere agate line in the box score. It can hardly be a coincidence, therefore, that in running their victories through 10 straight—the latest a 12-4 route of the Senators yesterday—the Tribe's Grade-A hurling staff has yielded only a fraction more than seven safeties per contest.

The batting support supplied Messrs. Feller, Milnar, Smith, Harder and Co. also has been noteworthy. The Indians' hitting, with every man but the pitchers chiming in, set the keynote for the American league, where the winners' runs in each case ran into double figures.

The Philadelphia Athletics set the day's high in their 17-11 victory over the White Sox. The New York Yankees, still in second place, fell three and a half games off Cleveland's pace when big Buck Newsom set them on their collective ear, 10-1.

In St. Louis Lefty Grove hung up his first victory of the year as the Boston Red Sox, mainly on one big inning, thumped the Browns, 11-4.

* * *

A rookie pitcher, Tom Hughes, was the day's standout performer in the National league. The 21-year-old Philly hurler set down the world champion Cincinnati Reds, 3-0.

* * *

The front-running St. Louis Cardinals ran their string to nine in a row. The Cards bunched five of their six hits in the eighth against Manuel Salvo for all their runs and a 3-1 victory.

An error that paved the way for four unearned runs, three of them on Elbie Fletcher's homer, helped the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-4 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The New York Giants, who hadn't won in seven starts, belted six Chicago Cub pitchers for 13 hits and a 9-4 score.

Dawson Pitches Ontario Winner

P. Dawson pitched and batted Ontario to a 9-7 victory over Lucas in the baseball opener at Ontario yesterday going the route on the mound and contributing three singles to the attack.

Heckert also checked in with three hits for the winners while Franks led Lucas with a home run and double in four trips to the dish.

Reds Blanked By Lowly Phils

Cellar Dwellers Reach Up To Splash Brush.

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds, blushing that the Phillies reached up from the National league cellar to slap the first 1941 whitewash on the world champions, put their hope for revenge today in Johnny Vander Meer.

* * *

Ike Pearson, who has lost three, will be after his first victory against the Reds. Vandy has shut out the Cubs, beaten the Pirates and lost tough ones to St. Louis and Brooklyn.

* * *

The Reds—who in their last seven games have averaged only a shade more than five hits a contest—were held to three safeties yesterday by a clever, 21-year-old rookie. Thomas Owen Hughes, who pitched the Phils to a 3-0 victory.

Hughes fanned three, walked two and allowed only three Reds to Reach third.

Meanwhile, Heinie Mueller singled to right in the second after Nick Etten's double to produce one run and in the fourth hit the same spot to bring in Danny Litwhiler who also doubled. Etten, who walked in front of Mueller in the fourth, scored on a double play which marked the beginning of Elmer Riddle's relief of Junior Thompson.

Riddle kept the Phils to one hit in four rounds, left for a pinch-hitter, and Johnny Hutchings hurled the hitless final frame for the Redlegs.

* * *

Manager Bill McKechnie shook up his line-up for the fifth time, benching Catcher Ernie Lombardi, who has driven in only one run in 14 games, and Jim Gleeson, whose hitless at-bats stands at 19.

Feller Gets Job Of Continuing Indians' Streak

Tribe Chalks Tenth Straight at Expense of Hapless Senators

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The Indians today assigned Bob Feller the task of running their victory string to 11 and even the opposing Washington Senators admitted the league-leaders couldn't have made a better choice. Bob has won four straight contests since dropping the season opener to Chicago.

Manager Bucky Harris nominated southpaw Ken Chase to stop the Redskins, who clubbed three Washington pitchers for 15 hits and a 12 to 4 victory yesterday before 21,388 fans.

* * *

Al Smith received credit for the triumph, his third of the year, but he had to have help from Clint Brown in the eighth inning.

* * *

Rollie Hemsley returned to his catching post after several days of idleness and paced the tribal attack with a double and two singles. Every man in the Cleveland lineup except the pitchers got at least one hit.

The Indians started their run-making in the second inning on Jeff Heath's single, Beau Bell's double and a wild pitch by Walter Masterson. Singles by Ken Keltner, Lou Boudreau and Hal Trosky, sandwiched with a walk and a sacrifice, netted three more tallies in the sixth.

One-base blows by Trosky and Heath off Arnold Anderson and an infield out added another marker in the seventh. In the eighth Cleveland blasted the offerings of Anderson and Bill Zuber, former Indian relief pitcher, for six runs to sew up the game.

* * *

Meanwhile Washington was having little success against Smith. In the fifth Doc Cramer tripled and came home on a wild pitch and the next inning Cecil Travis homered and George Archie and Rich Farrell doubled in succession to place two more runs.

Buddy Lewis and Travis opened the eighth inning with singles and Fireman Brown came in. He nipped the rally after one run, Lewis scoring on Farrell's single.

Whirler To Get Preakness Test

Kentucky Derby Winner To Run Saturday.

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK — (AP) — Whether Whirlaway, the vagabond king of the turf, returns to rags or takes a stranglehold on the three-year-old crown will be determined Saturday when the Kentucky derby winner hooks up with Bold Irishman in the $75,000 Preakness at Pimlico.

* * *

It's going to be a mighty long time before Whily's record-smashing performance in the derby is forgotten by the 100,000 who saw the little chestnut burn up Churchill Downs home-stretch Saturday with 2:01 2-5 clocking, beating Twenty Grand's mark by 2-5 of a second.

But in Bold Irishman from Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley stable, he'll meet a horse that also can turn on the heat in the final drive.

The Irishman, kept out of the derby by a slight injury, is the only high-ranking two-year-old of 1940 that figures to bar Whirlaway's path to the mythical "Triple Crown," which also includes the Belmont stakes.

Whether Whirlaway will repeat his derby performance in the Preakness, not even Trainer Ben Jones is sure. Whirly was the leading money-winning two-year-old of 1940 and great things were expected of him this season. But he was a "bum" in Florida, hard to handle but possessing so much speed that he ran out at the turns.

* * *

The derby victory, worth $61,275 and the richest in the stake's history, boosted the earnings for two seasons to $145,326 for the son of the English derby winner, Blenheim.

Plain Ben from Parnell, Mo., who won in 1938 with Lawrin, all but slept with his charge for six months. Morning after morning he had Whirly learning how to take the turns by having a lead pony force him into the rail. Pictures even indicated Jones dressed up the derby winner with only one blinker—over his right eye—thus aiding him in keeping to the rail.

Then the night before the big race, Jones sketched a map of the track for Jockey Eddie Arcaro, showing him just where he wanted Whirlaway to be at each point. Arcaro, who never had ridden the colt until Friday, obeyed instructions well.

As much as 17 lengths back at the half-mile post, Arcaro moved Whirlaway into a contending position rounding the last turn. Then came the thunderbolt. He shot between the pace-setting Porter's Cap and Blue Pair, and pulled away to win by eight lengths, running the last quarter in 24 seconds.

He left Hugh Nesbitt's Staretor and Lou Tufano's Market Wise to fight it out for second with the decision going to Staretor. The remainder of the field was strung out down the stretch.

Wolverines Have Chance At Title

CHICAGO — (AP) — Undefeated Michigan has a chance this week to drive Illinois' third-place club from among the Big Ten baseball championship contenders.

The Wolverines entertain the Illini at Ann Arbor Friday and Saturday. A double victory would virtually eliminate Illinois from the title chase. Fourth-place Indiana is host to Ohio State in another week-end clash.

Michigan stretched its victory string to four games over the week-end with two wins over Ohio State, 13 to 5 and 15 to 8. Iowa dropped two engagements to Minnesota, 4 to 3 and 3 to 2. Illinois won over Chicago's basement dwellers, 22 to 4 and 16 to 3 and Indiana whipped Purdue twice, 10 to 1 and 7 to 6.

1942 AUTOS TO HAVE PLENTY OF EYE APPEAL

Designers Say New Models To Get Bright Surfaces; Prices To Be Higher.

By DAVID J. WILKIE
(AP Automotive Editor)

DETROIT—If you have been led to believe there may be no 1942 model automobiles or that if there are, they will be drab-appearing vehicles of uncertain quality, with no "oomph" and almost prohibitive in price, just consider a few facts concerning the making and merchandising of motorcars.

To begin with, there very definitely will be 1942 model automobiles. There may be some curtailment of output volume and there may be intermittent interruptions to production during the 1942 model year because of materials difficulties from time to time, but new models will be made.

And so far as appearance goes, consider the excessive amount of plating, for one thing, that has featured the 1941 types. Most of the automobile engineers frankly admit that they believe too much cromium plating has been used this year.

There will be bright surfaces on the new models; the plating may be somewhat thinner than heretofore but it will serve the same purpose.

Prices probably will go up, but they won't go to prohibitive levels for the very reason that the motorcar industry can't do business on "prohibitive" price schedules. Moreover, consumer demand ever since the present models were introduced has been on a basis equaled on only one or two occasions in the past. That means a certain amount of backlogged retail demand has been satisfied.

So far as the quality of the impending new models is concerned, it is worth considering that some companies already have demonstrated the practicability of bringing out new units despite materials priorities and the ban on new machine tools for the motorcar industry.

Most of the car manufacturers believe that the likelihood that certain "substitute" metals will be used in the 1942 models has been given entirely too much emphasis.

There may be some modification in adornment of new models now in the making, but a considerable number of the production chiefs believe that when the inventories of the nation's supplies of various metals ordered by the office of production management have been completed it may be found the scarcity is not so great as at first indicated.

If that view is borne out, it may be that an anticipated reduction of production schedules may be delayed beyond the end of the present calendar year.

There have been many mechanical advances in designing of automobiles over the last decade, but in the effort to swing buyer interest to new models from year to year, the car manufacturers have relied to a great degree upon the "millinery" or "eye appeal" aspect of their tasks.

Barring something wholly unforseen at this time, the 1942 models will not be lacking in those attributes and you'll never know whether the pistons are made of aluminum, cast iron or steel alloy or what kind of basic raw material was used for your radiator grille.

Female Battle.

Binnie Barnes and Gloria Dickson stage a hair-pulling in the rollicking comedy "This Thing Called Love," starring Rosalind Russell and Melvyn Douglas at the Park. It's all a part of the plot that has to do with a bridegroom trying to arouse his bride's interest in view of the fact she has put their marriage on a platonic basis for the first three months. Allyn Joslyn and Paul McGrath are others in the cast. Boris Karloff's "The Devil Commands," is the co-attraction

* * *

Hedy Lamarr Leads.

James Stewart and Hedy Lamarr top the cast in "Come Live With Me," showing at the Ritz. Ian Hunter, Veree Teasdale and Donald Meek are the other players. "Chad Hanna," a technicolor production starring Henry Fonda, is the second feature. Dorothy Lamour and Linda Darnell are cast.

* * *

Brazil OK's Film.

The South American government finds nothing wrong with "That Night In Rio," now showing at the Ohio. As a diplomatic gesture, Hollywood submitted the script to the Brazilian embassy in Washington and hired a Brazilian newspaper man as technical director. The elaborate technicolor spectacle featuring Carmen Miranda, Alice Faye and Don Ameche is filled with native rhythm and is embellished with the songs of Mack Gordon and Harry Warren, who wrote the music for the picture's predecessor, "Down Argentina Way."

* * *

Double Life.

Errol Flynn leads a double-life in "Footsteps In the Dark," showing at the Madison. He is the conventional young business man in the presence of his wife, Brenda Marshall, and an author of mystery stories on the side. It's the latter that gets him into trouble when he sets out to discover actual facts in a murder case and finds himself involved with a burlesque blonde. Lee Patrick plays the show girl and the cast includes Ralph Bellamy, Roscoe Karns and Allen Jenkins. The Cisco Kid returns in the second picture "Ride On Vaquero," featuring Cesar Romero.

FAMOUS RADIO TEAM COMING TO MADISON STAGE WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY!

Miss Lee of Star & Lee is strictly the Kate Smith type, with a warm personality, a beautiful voice, and bubbling over with good humor. Barney Star, her partner, is short of stature, but long on the accordion, and very quick on the comedy trigger. This contrast makes for a most entertaining comedy duo, much in demand for revues, radio, etc. A song to them becomes merely a piece of putty to be moulded into a piece of unusual entertainment, punctuated here and there with their own brand of comedy. Don't miss this great comedy team in "RED HOT AND LOVELY," the sensational stage revue coming to the Madison Theater Wednesday and Thursday. Among other great features on this show, you will see Nixon & Sans, famous funmakers. The three Ross Sisters, the world's finest sister trio; the Perry Twins, the Duke of Windsor's favorite comedy dancing stars; the 12 Ziegfeld Girls, glorifying the American girl; Milt Henkin, Tommy Tucker's former arranger and pianist, now out on his own and doing a fine job. All of these features and many more, you will see among the 35 stars with "RED HOT AND LOVELY," coming on the stage of the Madison Theater.

YOU SHOULD READ THESE FACTS

1 Because of the curtailment of auto production, hundreds are NOW buying NEW BUICKS—that means MORE late-model "trade-ins."

2 Because of the proposed increased tax on NEW cars, hundreds are NOW buying a NEW BUICK—that means more "trade-ins."

3 Because of the ALL-TIME record sales of NEW BUICKS, hundreds of "trade-ins" are crowding our Used Car Lot.

4 Because of the general upward price trend, which will be reflected in auto production costs, cars will cost more.

5 There never was a BETTER time to get a BETTER, late-model car than right NOW.

6 Trade for safety—Trade for economy—Trade for comfort—trade during our BI G CLEARANCE Used-Car Sale. We're smashing records and smashing prices.

PAM—Invention or Inventor? By A. W. Brewerton

AS I UNDERSTAND IT, CLARE, IT'S A NEW IDEA IN A DEFENSE GUN—AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN—TO PROTECT CIVILIAN POPULATIONS FROM BEING BOMBED!
IT WORKS SOME WAY BY THE APPLICATION OF MAGNETIC ATTRACTION!—ATTRACTION OF THE SHELL THAT IT SHOOTS TO THE BOMBS ON THE ATTACKING PLANE!
GOODNESS! MR. LEE MUST BE A REAL GENIUS TO DOPE OUT ANYTHING LIKE THAT!
5-5
I BELIEVE HE IS!—THINK OF IT, CLARE, WITH EVERYONE FRANTIC OVER THE DEFENSE OF THIS COUNTRY, MAYBE HE HAS DISCOVERED THE GREATEST WEAPON OF PROTECTION THIS NATION CAN HAVE!
THINK OF THAT!
AND CLARE LATER MUSED:
I WONDER IF OUR PAMELA ISN'T JUST ABOUT AS MUCH INTERESTED IN THE INVENTOR AS SHE IS IN THE INVENTION?

MANY STOCKS HIT NEW HIGHS DURING RALLY

Rails Lead Upward Climb of Market Favorites; Defense Spending Helps.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Rails again led the stock market in a modest rally today that carried a number of favorites into new high ground for the year.

Prominent on the early forward shift were N. Y. Central, Bethlehem Steel, Douglas Aircraft, Union Carbide, General Electric, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Anaconda and Consolidated Edison.

Secondary carrier bonds continued to improve and major commodities were higher.

Expanding defense spending, brokers said, apparently was receiving more attention as a market influence.

Market students scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said the coal strike damage to the steel industry would be felt for many months to come, with predictions heard that virtual capacity production cannot again be reached until fall.

"Despite these problems," the review added, "many consider the price situation the major problem because of freezing of prices without the previous refrigeration of wages.

said to have been built up ensuring the fleet against shortage.

Authoritative quarters in London, making no attempt to minimize the gravity of the situation, predicted frankly that if Axis influences triumphed against Britain in the Near East, Hitler would probably thrust next in Iran (Persia), the world's fourth biggest oil producer.

The German radio broadcast an asserted "official report" from Baghdad, the Iraq capital, that British planes bombed the city on Sunday morning.

In his Reichstag speech, Hitler declared that no power on earth could wrest away Germany's gains and that "neither force nor time will make us yield, let alone break us up."

Across the Atlantic President Roosevelt, speaking the same day at the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson, World war president, declared the American people "ever ready to fight again" for democracy Roosevelt said Wilson had taught "that democracy could not survive in isolation"

Without naming the United States, Hitler made what was taken as a reference to it near the end of his one hour and 10 minute talk:

"When today democratic agitators of a country which the German people never harmed and whose statement that the German people intend to do so is an absurd lie, threaten to throttle the national socialist peoples' state with the force of their capitalist system, then there is only one answer, the German people will never again experience such a year as 1918."

Germany's army and air force losses in the Balkans were set by Hitler at 67 officers and 1,084 men killed. 181 officers and 3,571 men wounded, and 43 officers and 476 men missing. He said more than 9,000 Australian and New Zealand soldiers were taken prisoner and that 8,000 Greek officers and 210,000 Greek soldiers were captured Serb captives, he said, totalled 6 298 officers and 337,864 men.

The Nazi leader accused Churchill of spurning German peace proposals and of involving innocent nations in hopeless wars

Of his Axis partner, Hitler said "Mussolini never asked me for a single division"

In North Africa British forces settled down for a determined defensive campaign astride the Suez canal, and reported Empire troops still holding out at besieged Tobruk and blocking the Axis eastward drive in the vicinity of Salum.

At Kyoto, Japan Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka flatly declared yesterday he was not planning a trip to the United States to ascertain its attitude toward the Far East.

He said he already knew of conditions in the United States and suggested that President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull visit Japan to learn about conditions in the Orient.

Eire Comes To Aid Of Northern Ireland

BELFAST Ireland — (U P) — Eirean fire brigades jettisoned the formalities of neutrality last night and went across the border to help cope with a German air attack that had turned Belfast into a sea of raging flames

Weary Eireans still are working feverishly this morning in the smoke-laden streets alongside Ulster brigades

A wave of gratitude for Eire's errand of mercy has swept the city overnight, establishing a bond of sympathy between north and south Ireland which no British or Irish statesman had been able to establish in a generation

In addition to the fire brigade gesture, Dublin appeared to be rushing all possible aid to stricken Belfast

Hundreds of persons whose homes here have been razed to mounds of brick and plaster are gathering their few remaining belongings and leaving for the north Ireland countryside

U. S. Army Has Developed New Powerful Gas

ST LOUIS—(INS)—The United States army has developed a powerful gas known as a "nerve paralyzant" which produces muscular paralysis and finally death, according to Dr Hans L Kleine of St Louis a major in the Medical Reserve Corps

Dr. Kleine described the gas briefly in an address to the annual spring conference of the St. Louis Clinics

Describing the effects of the gas to a reporter he said

"The effects are quick and fatal weakening the individual resulting in muscular paralysis and finally death The modern gas mask does not prevent it from taking effect The only mask which will do so is the oxygen-fed masks such as are used by airplane pilots"

The new gas never has been used by the army Dr Kleine said but there is speculation whether a similar type of gas was used by the German army in capturing a Belgian fort during the Nazi drive last year indications that Germans who gave thoughtful study to Hitler's report to the Reichstag were pondering the prospects of the United States becoming a belligerent.

Hitler said yesterday that Germany and her allies form a mightier combination than any other possible coalition in the world today, and "neither force nor time will make us yield, let alone break us"

What Germany has won, he cried, cannot be wrested from her "by any power in the world."

"If already the German soldier possesses the best weapons in the world, he will receive still better ones this year and next," the fuehrer shouted to a cheering Reichstag.

He did not refer to the United States my name in his 70-minute address but some of his references were interpreted as applying to that nation

"When today democratic agitators of a country which the German people never harmed and whose statement that the German people intend to do so is an absurd lie, threaten to throttle the National Socialist Peoples' state with the force of their capitalistic system, then there is only one answer"

"The German people will never again experience such a year as 1918."

"The German people will profess more frantically than ever the axiom that neither force nor time will make us yield, let alone break us"

See Promise of More Aid in Speech

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt's declaration that the American people "are ever ready to fight again" for democracy was interpreted in high administration quarters today as carrying a new promise of virtually unlimited assistance to nations resisting aggression.

This view was taken by some members of the party which accompanied the president to Staunton Va, where he made the statement yesterday in dedicating the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson as a national shrine

In Washington Senator Nye (R, N D) commented that "if the president is making a feeler for a declaration of war he will be quickly surprised to see the people of America do not want to be involved."

Officials in the presidential party noted, on the other hand that he did not say Americans were ready to go to war and drew a distinction between that and his actual words In the present instance, they said, "fight" was a broad term covering strong material support of democratic nations rather than military involvement in the war

CLEAN-UP WEEK LAUNCHED AT ASHLAND TODAY

Annual Campaign Includes the Collection of Rubbish By City Trucks.

ASHLAND—The city's annual clean-up campaign was launched today and will continue throughout the week. Tomorrow trucks will swing into the first ward for the collection of rubbish.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the campaign. Boys and girls of the fifth and sixth grades were asked for opinions regarding features of clean-up week and responded with essays, poems, stories and plays depicting their ideas of what, why and how annual clean-ups are valuable.

For five consecutive weeks public meetings have been held at the courthouse with moving pictures and lectures showing the necessity for keeping areas clean and methods of accomplishing this task. Proper construction of porches and lattices, correct method of repairing windows, houses and garages, the most efficient blending of materials for painting buildings, balanced planting of shrubbery and most pleasing combinations of plants were some of the features of these illustrated lectures.

The Chamber of Commerce sponsored the lectures through the efforts of the city and rural relationship committee.

The followup is the collection of rubbish each day until the entire city has been "cleaned up." Rubbish must be in containers and be at the curb the day assigned for each ward.

The street commissioner has had crews of men working day and night, repairing frost damage by day and sweeping the streets by night. The heaviest frost damage for years is reported by the street department.

The kind of civilization that requires policing seems to have been misnamed.

Willkie Urges Unity for Defense

WENDELL WILLKIE, as a private citizen, may be considered an excellent example of the attitude of administration support needed to bring about a spirit of unity highly essential to this country's defense and aid-to-Britain program.

In a current magazine article Mr. Willkie takes issue with the Lindbergh charge that this nation is being led into a war in which victory is impossible, and makes a plea that America "stop being afraid."

In a later interview Mr. Willkie stressed the importance of assuring safe transport of American goods to England, "whether by convoy, airplane accompaniment, or any other method deemed best."

Discussing ways in which to safeguard shipments of munitions and other supplies to Great Britain, Mr. Willkie suggested that these matters be discussed with military, naval and air experts before decisions are reached.

Touching on the resignation of Charles A. Lindbergh from the air corps and decision not to renew Hugh S. Johnson's army reserve commission, Mr. Willkie expressed views which are worthy of thoughtful consideration by President Roosevelt as well as by all citizens. He deprecated personal controversies with those of a different viewpoint and said: "I wholly disagree with Col. Lindbergh, but, in the words of Voltaire: 'I do not agree with a word you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it.' The best way to dissipate any influence that Lindbergh might have is not to attack him personally, but to show the fallacy of his position.

"National unity is so all-important that I do not want to see people's minds closed and diverted by inflammatory discussion and the use of personalities."

What should be better understood is that NOBODY IN THE UNITED STATES WANTS TO GET INTO THE WAR—that everything now being done toward defense and aid to Britain is with the hope of being able to keep out of actual participation in the war. Failure to aid Great Britain to the extent of assuring defeat of the Axis powers is the one thing most likely to plunge this country into war.

Mr. Willkie, and others who speak for national unity and "all out" defense and aid to Britain, are doing their country and the entire world a valuable service.

Should Have Police Authority

WHATEVER may be the actual intent of organized labor's opposition to granting full police powers to state highway patrolmen, the implications of that attitude are unpleasant.

A bill already approved by the senate, and recommended for passage by the house judiciary committee, is scheduled for a vote in the house this week. It provides for an increase of highway patrolmen from 200 to 300 and extension of police powers to patrolmen.

Heretofore highway patrolmen have been limited to making arrests for traffic violations and it is the contention of some union labor leaders that this limitation should continue.

Organized labor opposition to a state police force was so strong for many years that legislative action along this line was successfully blocked, but the public interest involved in more adequate highway policing finally resulted in establishing the state highway patrol for special traffic duty.

In the apprehension of criminals and for preservation of law and order in emergencies, it now appears that enlargement of the patrol personnel is advisable—and that these patrolmen should have full police authority.

Consider Raising Speed Limit

THE IDEA of some Ohio legislators that traffic safety would be improved by increasing the present 45-mile speed limit to 55 miles an hour appears to have little merit.

As the law now stands the 45-mile restriction is not intended as a definite speed limit but merely as a point at which greater speed is considered prima facia evidence of guilt, in the event of other violation of traffic regulations or in case of accident.

The proposal to step up this maximum to 55 miles an hour is understood to continue the uncertainty as to legal speed limit and to make no distinction between permissible speed for daylight and night driving.

Efforts to define "safe driving speed" in terms of miles-per-hour have been so generally ineffective that a number of states have shifted to a law calling for "reasonable" speed, with enforcement officers assumed to recognize unreasonable speed under various road, traffic and weather conditions.

Pennsylvania, with its efficient and adequate highway patrol system, is having quite satisfactory results with its ACTUAL 50-mile speed limit, and motorists in that state realize that speed in excess of 50 miles an hour subjects them to arrest and penalty. A common sense view of the matter will lead many to the belief that an enforced 50-mile limit would go a long way toward reducing traffic accidents and fatalities. Such excessive speed as 60, 70 or 80 miles an hour on public highways is too frequently associated with careless, reckless or drunken driving to be conducive to safety.

Unless it is intended to fix 55 miles an hour as a definite maximum speed, with the prima facia feature eliminated, it would appear that this part of the law had better be left as it is and legislative attention directed to strengthening the drivers' license law.

Georgia is toying with the idea of legalizing state-owned slot machines to raise old-age pension money—and liquor licensing to finance school maintenance might also be helpful.

Optimism is wonderful—as, for instance, the Chicago News confidently asserting: "Some day a Chicago gang murderer will be caught and convicted."

A California poultryman says radio programs induce hens to lay more eggs—but they probably have no other comedian traits.

A DISSATISFIED CUSTOMER

Hesitate to Cut Tax Exemption

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — There is a strong disposition on Capitol Hill not to lower the income tax exemptions, despite the pressing need for every dollar that can be raised. There are two motives for resisting the change.

One is economy. It will cost as much to handle the small income group returns, meaning from those persons who at present do not have to make any—as the resulting revenue will produce. Thus all that will be accomplished will be to create resentment among a large number of persons, who, not accustomed to making any such report, will find it an even greater headache than the average small taxpayer.

The other reason is purely political. There is no desire on the part of congressmen to build up resentments. Just a few people thus alienated might spell the difference between Representative A coming back for another two years and his being retired to private life.

* * *

MOREOVER, the treasury scale of tax increases is accomplishing the ends always desired when most people advocate reduction of the exemptions without doing it. The point is that from the treasury standpoint the only desirable point about reducing exemptions in the income tax schedules is not to get more people to pay taxes, but make those already paying taxes to pay more. A reduction of $500 in the exemption, obviously, not only makes more people fill out income tax blanks, but it adds $500 to the taxable income of every person now paying taxes. It throws everyone $500 closer to the higher brackets, and the rich have to pay the big percentages, 60 and 70, on $500 more.

The treasury has so coldly stepped up the percentages, and at such comparatively low figures, that this objective is no longer important. Besides, the treasury has always been more realistic than congress about the very high brackets. The treasury experts have always known, from experience, that as soon as the government begins taking more than three-quarters of an income—in the top brackets of course—the income tax payer in question loses a great deal of incentive so far as making any more money is concerned. He also looks more eagerly for tax exempts.

If the income tax exemptions are not lowered, and this is the present prospect, there is not going to be any greater realization on the part of the small income tax groups that big government spending DOES take a toll from them. They are going to keep right on thinking that it does not make much difference to them personally what taxes are, because the rich are going to pay them.

* * *

ONE of the strangest things in life is that this conviction on the part of the have-nots is so widespread. And even among some who have considerable of this world's goods. Just a few months ago, before the last boost in cigaret taxes, there was a question on "Information Please" as to what was the federal tax on a package of cigarets.

Now it seldom happens that anyone in the submerged third is a guest on "Information Please." The regulars and most of the visitors may not be rich, but they have enough to get hit by the surtaxes. Yet not one of the four on that night's panel knew that the federal tax on cigarets was then six cents a package!

Health and Diet

That Early Morning "Low" Feeling.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SOME people feel good when they get up in the morning and get worse as the day progresses; others feel terrible when they get up in the morning and get better as the day progresses, and some lucky people feel good in the morning and stay feeling good all day.

Most cases of organic disease, as well as functional nervous disease (neurasthenia), belong to the category of those who feel good when they first get up and get worse as the day advances.

A Typical Example.

The typical example of the one who feels terrible when he first gets up and gets better as time goes on, is the chronic alcoholic, or the fellow with a hang-over.

Another example, however, are the people with certain kinds of low blood presure. Now, low blood pressure is largely a matter for congratulation. People who have discovered they have a low blood pressure often write me in consternation as to what to do about it, and I invariably tell them to get down on their knees and thank God for it. People with low blood pressure are usually those who live to an advanced age.

There is a peculiar type of low blood pressure, however, which causes symptoms that have been very puzzling. These are the people who have low blood pressure only when they are standing up and they are the typical examples of the people who feel badly when they get up in the morning and feel fine as the day goes on.

They feel badly because when they get up they have suddenly changed from a recumbent to an erect position. So long as they are recumbent the blood pressure is equalized and they have no sensation. When they get up the blood pressure drops very abruptly and they are liable to have a feeling of fatigue and malaise and a general all-in sensation. As the day wears on, some kind of adjustment takes place—their blood vessels contract somewhat, the blood pressure rises and that is why they feel better as time goes on.

Probable Prevention.

It is probable that these symptoms can be prevented by the simple manoeuvre of putting a corset on and binding the legs up with an elastic bandage or with an ordinary bandage. This supports the large veins of the abdomen and legs. It is probable that the low blood pressure in these people is due to lack of efficiency in the veins rather than in the arteries. In the erect position, the blood accumulates there and the heart has no blood to work on and, therefore, the blood pressure drops.

As a matter of fact, the same procedure works in preventing shock in certain kinds of surgical operations. In certain operations on the head, it is customary nowadays to have the patient sit up. This position undoubtedly reduces the shock which is so frequent with this class of patient.

In one surgical clinic, it was found that if a tight bandage was put around the feet and legs nearly 100 per cent went through the operation without indications of shock.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Tank Production Above Schedule, Mass Output Will Start In June

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The latest Nazi blitz, in which tanks played such a decisive part in sweeping the Greek-Yugoslav-British forces out of the Balkans, has concentrated attention as never before upon U. S. production of this vital weapon.

One man who concentrated upon it, venerable Bernard Baruch, charged down war department corridors the other day and into the office of Judge Robert Patterson, able under secretary of war. At President Roosevelt's request, Baruch, chairman of the War Industries Board in 1917-18, comes to Washington for a few days every week to prod defense production.

This time, shaking a long, bony finger at Under Secretary Patterson, Baruch asked a score of questions about tanks. "What about their armor? Are the 37-millimeter guns ready? What is the production rate?"

One by one Baruch checked down the list, appeared satisfied except for one thing. The army was behind in the production of armor-piercing shells for the guns carried by the tanks.

"In other words," exclaimed Baruch, "after your tanks are finished they won't have armor-piercing shells to fire at the enemy's tanks!"

* * *

Better Than Expected.

BERNY BARUCH, lunching with the president every Tuesday, dropping in to give suggestions to young Ed Stettinius, OPM priorities chief, and needling war and navy chiefs, has been a wholesome influence around Washington. Through his tips on how it was done in the last war, he has provided many short cuts.

Regarding tanks, however, the United States is in a much better situation than was expected last year.

With the fall of France, in which armored divisions also played a major role, the United States found itself with exactly 460 obsolete tanks, worthless except for training purposes. Shortly thereafter, the army ordered 9,200 new tanks of two types—13-ton light tanks, capable of doing 50 miles an hour; and 28-ton medium tanks, capable of doing 25 miles an hour over rough terrain.

Orders for the light tanks were given to the American Car and Foundry company at Berwick, Pa., which was already equipped for the job, and these light tanks are now nearing mass production. But to build the medium tanks it was necessary to erect new factories and tool them. It was the tooling that was by far the toughest job.

Contracts for the medium tanks were let last August to Chrysler in Detroit, the Baldwin Locomotive Works at Eddystone, Pa., and the American Locomotive company at Schenectady, N. Y.; and the war department's own arsenal at Rock Island, Ill., also participated. It was not expected to complete the new plants and get production under way until July of this year.

* * *

Ahead of Schedule.

HOWEVER, the first tanks made their appearance three months ahead of schedule. No. 1 was delivered by the Rock Island arsenal in early April; American Locomotive followed a week later with its pilot model; and Baldwin and Chrysler turned out their first on April 24.

These four pilot models will be tested out by the army as a final check; and quantity production will get under way by June at the rate of 150 a month and stepping up steadily thereafter.

Berny Baruch was correct that the army does not yet have armor-piercing shells for the new tanks as of today. But by the time the tanks are in mass-production, the production of shells will have just about caught up. The medium tanks carry, in addition to machine guns and anti-aircraft guns, three 37-mm. guns and a 75-mm. cannon.

Note—Last summer tanks were placed seventh on the priorities list. Ahead of them came airplanes, small arms, small arms ammunition, anti-aircraft guns, plus various urgent needs of the navy. As a result, the tank industry still is handicapped for machine tools, and its accomplishment is all the more notable. Defense officials give especial credit to Chrysler because it had never before built anything remotely resembling a tank.

(Editor's Note—Another article in this series on defense production will follow soon.)

What, No Derby?

FROM schoolboys in the Bronx to ranch hands on the West Coast, the Kentucky Derby is one of the top sports events of the year. But the classic horse race stirs no sentiments in the bosom of one of the Blue Grass state's leading congressional figures, Representative Andrew Jackson May, chairman of the house military affairs committee.

Several days before the race a newsman asked May, "What horse are you betting on in the Derby?"

"Derby?" exclaimed the Kentuckian with a blank expression. "What derby are you talking about?"

* * *

Stark's Patrols.

WASHINGTON was in a furore the other day over what Admiral Stark did or didn't say about navy patrols. First reports was that he said the navy was patrolling 3,000 miles out at sea, which would mean practically all the way across the Atlantic.

But later he modified this, saying he had meant 2,000 miles. Here is the inside story of what happened:

Stark, chief of naval operations, addressed a luncheon of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. His prepared speech had been handed out to the press in advance, but the newsmen were caught off base when he threw in some impromptu remarks at the opening. And it was in these remarks that he referred to the long range of navy patrols.

When he had finished speaking, newsmen rushed up to confirm what they thought he had said—that we were patrolling 3,000 miles from our own shores. Foreseeing that the item might make trouble, Stark said that 2,000 miles might be more accurate.

But newsmen wanted the actual unguarded words. So they rushed out to a studio where radio engineer Robert Coar had made a recording of Stark's talk. He played the record, and they heard the words again — "three thousand miles."

By this time the navy department was in a boil. An aide rushed to the studio, in the admiral's car and with the admiral's chauffeur, to take possession of the record, and to "correct the impression that Admiral Stark said 3,000 miles." Navy officials insisted he had meant to say 2,000, and they obtained promises from newsmen that the higher figure would not be used.

Note—The actual language Stark used, as the transcription revealed, was as follows: "I wish I could talk about convoys. I would like to tell you where they are, three thousand miles out, from the high latitudes to the Equator, in both oceans, but if I did, somebody would say, 'I wonder if Betty Stark has gone crazy, giving away all that secret information'."

Apparently what Stark meant was that naval vessels operating in southern latitudes — out of Charleston, S. C., for example—might go 3,000 miles into the Atlantic without approaching any nearer Europe than another vessel 2,000 miles out of New York or Boston.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Answering the mail orders:

* * *

Mrs. W. M. N., Flint, Mich.—The chances of a trainee with ability and ambition becoming an officer are excellent. For example, at ten camps in July, officer training schools will be started, with an initial quota of 2,300 men, and those who survive will be commissioned second lieutenants about three months later. Every one of these will be selected from the ranks of regulars, national guardsmen, and trainees by their unit commanders. The only requisite other than ability is that they must have had six months in training and be able to serve at least three after their commission.

* * *

T. D., Fairfield, Ill.—Roughly, defense hiring in Washington is going at the rate of 1,000 a week. Most officials here think that it will be midsummer before there will be any slackening off, but that will depend entirely on world developments. Washington is supposed to have increased its population 10 per cent in the last year and now to be the tenth city in the country, with well over 725,000.

* * *

L. R., Fort Wayne, Ind. — The reason the house of representatives doesn't argue as long over bills as the senate is that debate in the house is, by rule, limited to one hour. In the senate, debate is limited only by the agreement of majority and minority leaders and the disposition is to give both sides all the time they want.

* * *

Maj. A. B. P. (Retired), Camp Haan, Calif. — I stand corrected and am happy to be able to quote a real authority on the soldier's use of the term "GI." (The Major explains: "GI means officially 'government issue.' Ofttimes, soldiers buy civilian shirts, shoes, ties, etc., and at a Saturday morning or other inspection the captain will often ask if such and such an article of apparel worn by a soldier is GI. The expression is used in many ways and where a dance is sponsored by a soldiers' club or camp hostess and is for soldiers and their ladies only, it is referred to as a GI dance. A show troupe may put on a show in a camp or post for soldiers only and that is a GI show.")

* * *

K. V., Louisville, Ky.—There is no chairman of the senate military affairs committee at present. Sen. Robert Reynolds (D.-N. C.) has seniority right to the important post and wants it, but the steering committee that handles committee assignments has taken no action, presumably because Senator Reynolds has fought the administration on its foreign policy and resided long in the isolationist camp. If the committee should go against Senator Reynolds, it would be the first time in nearly 25 years that seniority hasn't predominated in committee elevations. Seniority is the one custom which the senate guards most jealously and any senator, no matter what his opinions on the present matter, will tell you that any effort to circumvent seniority will cause a whopping big scrap.

* * *

Mrs. M. A., Williamsport, Md.—Thanks for your "little story" and here it is: Mrs. Katherine Edgar Byron is running for the Maryland Sixth congressional district post left vacant recently by the death of her husband, Rep. William D. Byron. As was her husband, she's a Democrat and a New Dealer, but if she is elected, she will be sitting in the same seat her grandfather, a steadfast Republican, held for eight years. Rep. Louis E. McComas, her G. O. P. grandpa, served Maryland's Sixth for four terms as congressman and then went on to the senate for six years.

A Farmer's Diary

Reclaiming Land

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AT THE south side of the field we plowed for corn a two-acre patch had not been cultivated for years. Blue grass and weeds grew on the eastern side and rotted down during the winter. Canada thistles fared marvelously in several places. At the western end a riot of tall wild blackberry stalks, thorn apples, and scrubby hedges effectively screened a neighborhood of groundhog burrows.

"It was too wet," my neighbor explained. "Nobody has used it lately — the size of the thorn trees will tell you that."

This year is dry enough, and that brier patch bothered me. So I cut out the thorns and brush with my double-bitted axe and we tried plowing. But the tall spiny blackberry canes would not turn completely under. Even when burned at the base — we tried that—it stood up stiff and straight, a challenge to a man's perseverance and to his skin!

Finally I took the scythe and waded in. Old canes, intermixed with new, made a wiry mess. Sometimes the tall ones, when hit, would streak down across my old felt hat and grab at my face. My hands and arms were torn. But with the stable fork we heaped the stuff in piles and burned it. Half the stems were green, but they burned with a crackling sizzling heat.

Darkness came before we finished. After our evening meal my wife went down with me to help fire what remained. On top of the largest heap we piled stray sticks of light dry wood and the flames leaped high in the silent air and lighted up the circle where we stood. A wall of heavy darkness was moved back. Far of, a slender moon was visible.

We leaned upon the fork and scythe and watched in silence while the brambles curled in loops and circles and dissolved into gray ashes. The odor of the smoke was penetrating and pleasant. In the silence a night owl hooted from the slope, a song sparrow trilled his final note, we heard the murmur of sleepy childish voices on the lawn beyond the plowed acres. When the pile was only smoldering embers and the brier patch was no more, we trekked across the fallowed field, sinking at each step into the yielding earth.

Our hands and arms stung from the scratching briers—the smoke was in our hair and on our clothing—yet we knew the delight of pioneers.

CHAPTER X

Raye took the opposite one just as Ruthie said sarcastically, "I suppose you'll be keener than ever about Hal—now that you've lost your money."

"But, Ruthie . . ."

"Oh, I haven't come here to make it any harder for you! It can't be too funny to lose a fortune. I've only come to ask you to let Hal alone."

"Perhaps you don't—don't understand."

"All I know is—we were a comparatively happy family until you turned his head."

"Really, Ruthie—it just happened. I didn't deliberately try to do anything. I'm—I'm very fond of Hal. Perhaps you don't understand him as well as I do."

* * *

Ruthie's black eyes snapped. Her plump little body in a light green suit stirred restlessly in the cheap overstuffed chair.

"I don't intend to divorce him—if that's what you indicate."

Raye paled. She was at a loss for words.

Then abruptly she lost her patience and snapped, "If I had a husband who'd asked me to divorce him, I'd certainly have pride enough to get rid of him!"

"Hal has never asked me to do that," declared Ruthie triumphantly. "He's a devoted father—devoted husband—up to a certain point."

"Perhaps it's that certain point, Ruthie—that counts more than anything else."

But Raye was limp with despair. Hal had not yet discussed divorce with Ruthie! Why was he acting like this? And if Ruthie continued to be obstinate about divorce, what then?

"You're insinuating that Hal no longer cares for me, I presume," Ruthie burst out angrily. "I know he does care. He's only momentarily infatuated with you, Raye. You're only one of a series of his infatuations, I'm sorry to say."

Raye was thoroughly incensed. The idea that Ruthie would be so disloyal to her own husband! Ruthie, trying to expose Hal's faults to her rival!

"I've never thought of Hal as a philanderer," Raye said in a tone that indicated she thought Hal's wife was grasping at straws "I've never seen signs of it—and Hal has moved in our set for a long time."

"You don't know Hal—he's clever about his affairs As his wife, I know more about him than anyone else. He's so romantic, he can't help himself. Romance—well, romance is a sort of hobby with him. I can't say I'm happy living with him—but I love him in spite of everything."

"But you can't see, Ruthie—if Hal truly loved you, there would be no—no affairs? Any man who . . ."

"It's just as I've told you—the romantic side of him gets the upper hand."

"Perhaps the other woman could supply enough of that," Raye dared to suggest.

"Impossible! I will say, though, I've been more worried over you, Raye, than any of the others That's why I've come to you. I've never done such a thing before."

For an instant Raye felt deep pity for Ruthie. Then into her mind flashed the memory of Hal's fervent declarations of love, the worship in his dark eyes, the sincerity in his mellow voice and, once again, she decided that she was the only true affinity he had ever known.

So she stood up straight and taut in her billowing ivory satin negligee. She said on a note of dismissal, "We're getting nowhere, Ruthie. I suggest you go home—have it out with Hal—come to some decision."

Ruthie bounced out of her chair. "I've already arrived at a decision!" she flared. "I'm leaving town this afternoon—giving you and Hal a chance to come to your senses. If our—our friendship ever counted for anything, Raye—you'll discourage Hal. Good-bye!"

Without another word she was gone.

* * *

Raye sank weakly to the divan. her nerves a dancing torment. Love, friendship and loyalty were striving for simultaneous recognition.

She buried her face in her arms and burst into wild sobs.

In the midst of this outburst, the telephone rang.

Hastily, Raye dried her eyes on her sleeve and picked up the receiver on the small table beside her. Her "Hello" must have sounded very forlorn.

"Hi, darling! How's the world treating you this swell morning?" was Rex Maine's cheery greeting.

"Not so flowery, Rex. What do you know?"

"That you're still the only love of my life—that it's mighty inconvenient when I can't get you to reciprocate," he told her without a pause.

"Oh, that! But seriously, Rex, do you know of any job for a desperate, incompetent creature like me? I don't expect . . ."

"That's what I'm calling about. I've been let out of my Hollywood contract—I'm now free as air. So I'm about to finish that novel I began so long ago—and you're going to help me. How's that?"

"Perfectly idiotic! I know nothing about finishing novels—or even beginning them. You're sweet but . . ."

"You can learn to use a typewriter, can't you? You're about to take a course at the Wilville Business College—eventually be my number one secretary. I've rented an office downtown and purchased a shiny new typewriter for you. When you're not in classes, you may sit in my cuter office and pound the keys while I'm fuming over plots in my inner sanctum. I'm offering eighteen per—and a business course. I'm in dead earnest, Raye."

* * *

She had brightened as his plans unfolded.

"It sounds wonderful, Rex! I'm going to be mean enough to accept your offer. But you know very well I'll be nothing but a bother to an honest-to-goodness writing man. You've made the position for me out of sheer kindness—and I don't know how to thank you. Besides—if we can't keep things on a strictly business basis . . ."

"I will," he promised quickly. "If there's any proposing, it will come from you. darling. I'm completely discouraged over my devastating influence upon your emotions. I know I don't rate. So love is out—definitely."

"Thank you, Rex"

"Then it's a deal. If you'll report Monday morning at 466 Thomas Building, downtown, your desk will be waiting for you, Miss Stone"

His laugh was filled with glad confidence.

Raye answered in like vein. "I'll be there, Mr Maine. Nine o'clock?"

"Not a second later, Miss Stone. Now that that's settled, how about a little dinner engagement—say tonight?"

"You forget—you're my employer now. Besides—I've a previous engagement."

"I'm heartbroken. But better luck next time, I hope. I'll be looking forword—to Monday."

"You're a real friend," came unsteadily from Raye.

* * *

She replaced the receiver in its cradle with a prayer of thanksgiving on her lips. Certain it was that a kind providence was interested in her destiny and had given her this golden opportunity to make something of herself. Rex, the old dear, the faithful one, had come across with real assistance when she most needed it.

She was filled with happy, soaring anticipation now. This was after all a rather pleasant world; and only a few minutes ago, upon Ruthie's departure, it had seemed sadly out of sorts.

She actually had a position and she intended to make good in it. Perhaps in business college she could master those ridiculous looking curlicues that stenographers dashed off so easily in notebooks and deciphered afterward into legible typed words. Perhaps she'd be able to keep Rex in line so that he wouldn't constantly tell her how much he loved her. Perhaps tonight Hal and she could make some definite plans about Ruthie and the future.

But the matter of hurting Ruthie did rankle somewhat, Raye found. Ruthie was a cute little thing, but awfully dumb. Think of clinging to a man who didn't want you! No woman with any pride, with any sense of the fitness of things, would do that.

Raye wandered restlessly into her kitchenette and opened a can of tomato soup. She heated it, gulped it down and called it lunch

She put on a cool print dress, went to walk in a nearby park and attempted to amuse herself by watching squirrels and birds, nursemaids and babies. But the day dragged interminably. She could scarcely wait to be with Hal.

Around 6 o'clock, Rosalind Grinner called up. Rosalind's spirits were pitched to their customary frivolity.

"I'm going dancing with your boy-friend tonight, darling," she told Raye triumphantly.

Raye's heart lost a beat. Was Hal . . .

"My—my boy-friend?" came faintly from Raye's unsteady lips.

"Yes, silly—tall, light and not exactly handsome—but I like him. Your Bill Anderson!"

"Oh, that man!" Raye sighed with relief. "I wish you luck—hope you enjoy the evening."

"Don't worry, I shall. He thought you might like to come along—bring a man—make a double date of it"

"Sorry, darling," Raye quickly. "I've another date."

Bill Anderson, indeed! Thought he was clever, didn't he? She couldn't be bothered with him, of all people!

Raye ended the breezy conversation as soon as possible. It was difficult these days to pitch her repartee to sparkling heights. Already, she felt miles apart in thought, word and deed from her old irresponsible crowd.

She was bathed, dressed and waiting for Hal a full half hour before he was expected to come for her. She jumped at every sound, her nerves raw. This waiting—forever waiting for Hal—was unbearable. But perhaps by this time he and Ruthie had made definite plans and there would be something lovely to look forward to. That is, for herself and Hal. Naturally Ruthie would hate to be discarded. But wasn't it up to Ruthie to hold her man? If she couldn't, why did she want to deprive another woman of happiness?

TRUCK'S W[illegible] SAYS

All Signals Against It, But Still It Hit Engine, Says Suit.

LISBON —(AP)— The crossing lights were flickering, the engine bell was ringing, and the engineer had sounded the whistle.

And yet, says the Youngstown and Suburban Railroad company in a damage suit filed in common pleas court, along came E. L. Tullis' truck, smashed into the engine, derailed it and caused damage to the track. That was last Dec. 24. at North Lima.

The railroad asks $12,000 damages from Tullis who lives at nearby Rogers.

Friendly House Camp Being Prepared For Summer Periods

Friendly House camp is rapidly being conditioned for the season opening July 1, Russell Gimbel, director, said yesterday.

The first log cabin to be erected on the 28-acre site, presented to Friendly House as a gift last fall, is now completed. Construction of a shower house is under way and the grounds have been improved by grading and seeding.

A full-time summer camp program will be possible for the first time this season, according to Gimbel, and the schedule for the summer is now under consideration as well as the staff of counselors. The camp is located four miles southeast of Mansfield off the Little Washington road.

Weekly camp periods for all ages will be included in the program, Gimbel said, with each Sunday bringing a complete change in personnel among the campers.

Gimbel estimated that eight cabins are needed to provide adequate accommodations the first season. The newly built log cabin will house seven persons. Three more cabins are expected to be erected soon Cabins are gifts of friends.

The fresh air shelter house moved from the old Children's Home to the camp site last fall has been re-conditioned for use and will serve as the main lodge. Handicraft, cooking and sewing classes will be held there, also indoor movies and dancing.

100 SHAKEN UP

Passengers Bruised as Train Makes Emergency Stop.

TOLEDO —(AP)— Two persons suffered minor injuries and more than 100 were shaken yesterday when an eastbound New York Central passenger train made an emergency stop near the Maumee river bridge here.

Capt. Julius T. Husum, railroad officer, said the engineer of the 15-car train apparently applied too much pressure on an air brake when he saw a workman waving a red flag at a switch under repair. The abrupt stop snapped a coupling between the seventh and eighth coaches.

The train, the Inter-State Express, bound from Cleveland to Detroit, proceeded on its way after delay of half an hour.

COSTLY SUPERSTITION

CLEVELAND — (AP) — David Newman, 36, arrested as he passed a cemetery at 44 miles an hour, explained: "I just have a fear of cemeteries. I like to get past them in a hurry. It's sort of a complex." Judge William J. McDermott ruled it would cost Newman $5 for exercising that complex.

RUTH SANDERSON WEDS R. D. HANNAN

Mother and Sister of Recent Bride Give Tea Sunday At Their Home to Announce Wedding Ceremony of Miss Sanderson and Mr. Hannan.

MISS RUTH SANDERSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sanderson, 120 Gibson avenue, became the bride of Richard Dean Hannan, April 19 at 2:15 at Napoleon, according to announcement made Sunday when Mrs. Sanderson and the bride's sister, Mrs. Thomas Gerhart entertained at the Sanderson home. Mr. Hannan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hannan, 104 Stewart avenue.

Attending the couple for the ceremony were Miss Henrietta Winbigler and Carl Willis, jr., both of Mansfield. The bride wore a tailored crepe frock of brown and green with beige accessories. Miss Winbigler's dress was of pale blue crepe with navy accessories.

Following a wedding trip the couple returned to Mansfield. They are now residing at 172 West Fourth street. Mrs. Hannan was graduated from Mansfield high school and is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Mr. Hannan attended Springfield township high school and is employed at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company.

When friends and relatives met at the Sanderson home Sunday tea was served between the hours of 2 and 4 to 16 guests. The table was decorated with appointments in the pastel color schemes and centered with a tiered wedding cake. The bride and Mrs. Hannan, mother of the bridegroom, presided. The hostesses presented the bride with a gift of linen. Several parties have been planned in honor of the recent bride.

Mildred Jaster To Be Guest Of Honor Tuesday

Mrs. Mildred Jaster of Columbus, national Democratic committeewoman of Ohio, will be the guest of honor at the annual Dolly Madison tea to be held Tuesday afternoon in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Mrs. Jaster will address the group during the program scheduled for 4 p. m. Atty. Howard Gongwer will also speak for this meeting and others on the program include Mrs. Doris Battershell of Shelby, reader, and original piano composition solos by Janie Bushnell, vocal solo by Jane Weuthrick Brook, and dances by Jean Schill, Margery Crowl and Betty Underwood.

Arrangements for the spring party are in charge of Mrs. Norman Wolfe, general chairman, assisted by Mrs. Clark Brook, program chairman; Mrs. Boyd Wierman and Mrs. John Daley, decorations; Mrs. Paul Mitchell, Mrs. Howard Sword, Mrs. Robert Morris, and Mrs. Howard Ripper, reservations; Mrs. Cecil Schill, Mrs. Sherman Glessner, Mrs. George McGinley, Mrs. John McNamara, Mrs. Don Orewiler, and Mrs. Clarence Fisher, reception.

Guests will be in attendance from the Monticello club of Ashland and the Martha Jefferson club of Shiloh and Plymouth. Reservations may still be made to Mrs. Wolfe or Mrs. Clark Brook, Euclid avenue.

Preceding the tea there will be a business meeting of the club at 3 p. m. at the hotel.

Bible Class Meets For Program Study

Ladies Bible class of the Mayflower Congregational church met recently in the church parlors. Mrs. F. B. Poling, second vice president, conducted the business meeting and was also in charge of the program which consisted of several readings.

Readings were given by Mrs. C. A. Cole, Miss Grace Finical, Mrs. O. B. Grandon, Mrs. A. E. Fankhauser and Mrs. Poling. Contests were played and prizes won by Mrs. H. A. Rudolph and Mrs. Cole. The next meeting will be held June 6 with Mrs. Rudolph and Mrs. A. Rust as hostesses.

Guests were present from Canton to observe Mr. Marti's birthday.

All Types Of Coats Popular For Spring

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — At this time of year thoughts turn to the spring coat. The silhouette will probably interest everyone this year, even more than the color or the trim, because silhouettes are many. Newest is the postillion coat with slightly flared skirt and a ruffled detail at the neckline. Capes are important; and, of course the coat with slender skirt and full raglan sleeves.

The postillion coat which is sponsored by Anne Shirley in tomato red gabardine and by Joan Leslie in navy twill, particularly strike the younger set, although many of the older girls like it for evening. These coats are molded to the hips from which point they gracefully flare out, but their real interest is in the neck and shoulders. Here a series of flared self-material ruffles give a broad line and a jaunty air somewhat like the new dandy jabots that are so popular.

Bette Davis wears one of the new bloused coats with raglan sleeves in "The Bride Came C. O. D." Hers is a grey Rodier cloth shot with yellow wool and has bracelet length sleeves which is a new thought with the sleeves in one with the garment.

There are a great many redingotes abroad this season. As you probably know this is an ensemble coat which doesn't quite manage to come together in the front. Marsha Hunt has one in olive green soft wool. Its unusual skirt has narrow box pleats coming down from a wide band set in at the waistline. Rarely are these coats belted but of times they have high yokes tricked out with slit or amusing patch pockets. This spring you may even see reptile pockets.

The Directoire type of coat is no longer unique in line but colors are quite startling. Ann Sothern likes one in lavender-flecked tweed with velvet lapels and dropped shoulders. It is also equipped with a series of flat, flapped pockets down one side of the front.

Spring Styles Are Basically Same As 100 Years Ago

(By International News Service)

BERKELEY, Cal. — The new spring styles for women's dresses may be far different from those of the previous season, but basically their features are much the same as those which were the rage 100 or 300 years ago.

So say Dr. A. L. Kroeber, University of California Professor of Anthropology, and Dr. Jane Richardson, former University student, following deep research into women's fashions.

They found that the basic dimensions of modern Occidental feminine dress come in cycles of about 100 years. The basic pattern is repeated again and again about a century apart, while the "superstructural features" such as trains, sleeves, girdles, and flounces vary with the whims of designers.

The basic pattern, they say, is an ideal toward which European culture has been tending during recent centuries. It includes a skirt that is both full and long, a waist that is abnormally constricted.

Standard characteristics of dresses —their silhouettes —were studied over a 332 year period of styles.

The two periods in which the wildest fluctuation occurred, it was found were the Napoleonic era of 1787-1836 and the World war period and nearby decades, 1910-1936 These two periods contain more extremes of proportion than the intervening 75 years of the whole 18th century.

For studies, Dr. Kroeber and Miss Richardson utilized portraits by old masters, lithographed fashion plates and fashion magazines. They devised a standard system of measurement for the studies.

C. L. of C. MEETING.

There will be a meeting of the C. L. of C. at the club rooms Tuesday evening. This will be a social program.

Birthday Party Held At Fisher Home

Little Jo Ann Knarr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Knarr of Chicago, who has been visiting in Mansfield with her parents, was honored on her seventh birthday anniversary Saturday with a party at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Fisher, 187 Western avenue. Ten children attended the movie in the afternoon after which they played on the lawn at the Fisher home, where the above photo was taken. Left to right, front row, are Marilyn Knarr, Carolyn Hall, Kitty Bergstrom, Jo Ann Knarr, the honoree, and Nancy Urich. Back row, left to right, are Joyce Chamberlin, Evelyn Urich, Clifford Knarr, Billy Fisher and Stephen Fisher.

MRS. CARL SPANGLER, Park avenue west road, returned home from Columbus recently with the honor of being elected historian and parliamentarian for the Ohio Society for Political Education, an organization of Republican women. Mrs. Spangler was active in the recent convention of the group, serving as a hostess and also in charge of the scrap book display. She has served the group as a member of the board of directors and is also president of the Richland Republican Women's Council.

When almost dry, press thoroughly on the wrong side. Remove the collar from the cloth, lay it face down into a dry towel and press until dry.

Cook-Tootikian Wedding Held Saturday Night

In a quiet service at the home of Dr. Grover Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, Helen avenue, Miss Ann Cook, 243 West Dickson avenue, and Dr. Aram Tootikian, 194 Helen avenue, were united in marriage Saturday evening at 10 o'clock. The single ring service was attended by Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Culp. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Cook, of Marion, and Dr. Tootikian is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Tootikian of Cleveland.

For her wedding Mrs. Tootikian wore a navy blue ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Culp's frock was a black and white print and she wore a corsage of yellow roses. Following the service the couple left for a brief trip to Cleveland.

The bride was graduated from Harding high school, Marion, and has been employed at the Singer Sewing Machine company. Dr. Tootikian, optometrist, is a graduate of East Tech high school, Cleveland, and Ohio State university. They will reside at 585 West Third street.
